Eisenhower Releases Foreign Trade Report

Atom Control Is Hinged to Soviet Charge

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—Revolutionary changes in the whole system of Soviet rule would be necessary before the Rusian government could join with the United States in any atomic control program acceptable to Washington.

Diplomatic officials agreed today that Russian participation would be impossible without such revolutionary changes.

They also agreed that this is the fundamental reason why prospects for international atomic controls are extremely dim.

Russia's disclosure last week that it had succeeded in setting off a hydrogen explosion — Moscow said a type of H-bomb had been detonated—has brought a new round of demands and proposals for international action to lift the shadow of atomic war from the world's future.

Paralyzed for Years

This has been especially true at the United Nations, where all efforts at arms reduction and atomic controls have been paralyzd for years by East-West disagreement.

On Saturday Chairman Wiley (R.-Wis.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee released a letter from Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith replying to Wiley's inquiry about atomic prospects. Smith said frankly they were dim. He blamed Soviet "intransigeance" —refusal to compromise.

Officials said privately that the reasons for the "intransigeance" Smith cited are to be found in the nature of the Soviet system and the minimum terms upon which the United States and presumably other western powers would be willing to set up a disarmament and atomic control plan with the Soviet Union.

Essence of Issue

The essence of the problem, these informants said, is that the rule of the men in the Kremlin is based upon maximum isolation of the Soviet people from the outside world and rigid restriction of the movements of any foreigners permitted in Russia. The idea, as seen here, is to prevent the intrusion of any facts or thoughts contrary to the government line.

On Aug. 18, two days before disclosure of the Soviet hydrogen explosion, the United States circulated to all the nations with which it has diplomatic relations a Senate resolution calling for disarmament and atomic controls. This resolution set forth in sum-

Douglas Says U. S. Import Barriers Operate Against World Economy

Denver, Aug. 24 (AP)—President Eisenhower today made public an administration adviser's report declaring free world unity "will remain precarious and fragile" unless the United States liberalizes its foreign trade policies.

The report to the President by Lewis W. Douglas, former ambassador to Great Britain, says that for 30 years this country has erected import barriers which have operated against "re-establishment of international economic and financial health and equilibrium."

America long ago became the world's greatest creditor and can "no longer pursue the protectionist policies of a debtor nation and hope to escape . . . discrimination against American products in the international markets," the report adds.

"Time is of the essence" in moving toward freer trade, Douglas says in a review of currency and trade relations between the U. S. and Britain. He urges the administration to make a prompt announcement it is determined to work toward "a progressive vigorous and consistent relaxation of our restrictive foreign trade legislation."

Valuable Contribution

In a letter dated July 21, Eisenhower termed the report—submitted to him July 14—"a most valuable contribution toward illuminating the still dark corners of this highly significant matter." The President wrote further:

"It (the report) has in it a vein of candor, both with respect to the United Kingdom's position and our own, which is, I think, refreshing and very useful."

Without committing himself Eisenhower turned the report over tot he new government study commission on U. S. foreign economic policy, a group headed by Clarence E. Randall of Chicago, board chairman of the Inland Steel Corporation. The group soon will begin a survey to determine whether his country's trade policies should be revised.

At Eisenhower's request, Congress recently extended the Reciprocal Trade Act for a year without major change, pending the outcome of the commission's study.

'Real Contribution'

From his vacation headquarters here, Eisenhower wrote Randall today that the Douglas report is "a real contribution" to thinking in the field of dollar-sterling currency relationships of the U. S. and Britain.

Serving as a special deputy to Secretary of State Dulles, Douglas began his study for the President shortly after the talks which U. S. and British officials held in Washington last march on economic and financial problems.

Among other things, his report also calls for:

1. An increase in private investment of dollars in foreign countries.

2. A definition of terms by the International Bank upon which investment of private funds abroad might be made against most of the political risks of loss.

3. Development of measures to abate violent fluctuations in the prices and volume of the major raw materials entering international trade.

South Korea Plans Opposition in UN To Role of India

India Pushes Campaign for Inclusion as Conferee in Peace Assembly

United Nations, Aug. 24 (AP)—South Korea's fiery foreign minister , Y. T. Pyun, was reported ready today to make a strong declaration opposing India's participation in the Korean peace conference.

Pyun inscribed his name on the speakers' list for the afternoon session of the General Assembly's 60-nation political committee as that body resumed debate on the composition of the Korean parley.

The South Koreans have made no secret of their opposition to India as a member of the conference, but had taken no part in the debate here. President Syngman Rhee has been quoted by some diplomats as having threatened to boycott the conference if India is given a seat.

Campaign Is Vigorous

India, meanwhile, pushed a vigorous behind-the-scene campaign for inclusion. The Indian delegation this morning called the 16-nation Asian-Arab group into a huddle to try to line them up into a solid pro-Indian bloc.

At least three members of the bloc—Thailand, the Philippines and Pakistan—were reported uncertain. Another meeting of the group was scheduled for later in the day.

The United States continued to lead the oppositioin to India.

Exports Are Planned

Tokyo, Aug. 24 (AP)—Japan's Ministry of International Trade and Industry said today Russia is planning to export to Japan manganese ore, wheat, asbestos, heavy oil and potassium, Kyodo News Service reported. Russia has exported to Japan only coal produced in Sakhalin, Soviet-held island off northern Japan.

Some Men Say Chinese Act Gentle

Statements Come From Men Taken Prior to Armistice; 150 Yanks Released

Panmunjom, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Korean prisoner exchange approached the end of its third week today as 150 Americans—most of them captured late in the year—returned from Red captivity.

The Communists said they would return 136 more tomorrow, which would push the total number of freed Americans to 1,995. The Reds originally said they held 3,313 Americans.

Several repatriates spoke lightly and jokingly of their shorter experiences as captives in contrast to the grim tales told by other POWs who suffered under Red hands for two and three years.

The Reds also returned 300 South Koreans Monday. The UN Command released 2,400 North Korean soldiers and 259 North Korean civilians.

Two-Thirds Complete

"Operation Big Switch" is almost two-thirds complete, providing the current rate of exchange is maintained. Monday was the 20th day of the exchange.

Also promised for release Tuesday are eight Canadians, three Australians, two Dutch, one Greek and 250 South Koreans. The UN Command is expected to give back 2,400 North Koreans.

Although the Communists have stepped up their pace of exchange, they still are lagging in returning Americans. Only about 56 per cent of the listed American captives have been released.

The Reds have returned about 65 per cent—8,270—of the 12,763 allied POWs they said they held.

The UN Command has returned 44,629—about 60 per cent—of the 74,000 Red prisoners it held.

Most of Allied Held

The Reds still hold most of the allied officers and non-commissioned officers they captured and apparently are keeping them until the last.

Meanwhile, the first transport carrying released American POWs home crossed under the Golden Gate and unloaded 328 former prisoners onto American soil at San Francisco.

And at the South Korean port of Inchon, more Americans began boarding the transport Gen. John Pope, which is scheduled to sail Tuesday on the two-week trip to the United States with about 400 former POWs aboard.

Uprisings Still Occur In Country

New Regime's Prospects for Getting Cash in U. S. Are Considered Excellent

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 24 (AP)—Official sources announced today that police have transferred ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh from the comfortable quarters of the Tehran Officers' Club to a jail cell.

Mossadegh, clad in pajamas, surrendered last week after a bloody coup by supporters of Shah Mohammed Reza Pehlevi took over the government he had refused to relinquish.

The wily and weepy old Nationalist leader was interned in the plush Officers Club to await trial, possibly on charges of treason for refusing to obey the Shah's order a week ago to hand the premiership over to Gen. Fazollah Zahedi.

Following Mossadegh's initial success in balking the royal order to get out, the Shah and his queen flew to a brief exile.

The Iranian ruler returned after Zahedi last Wednesday led the Royalist coup that finally led to Mosadegh's downfall. It was not disclosed in what jail Mossadegh is held.

Troubles Not Over

Even with Mossadegh a prisoner, the new Zahedi government's troubles were not over.

Small, scattered pro-Mossadegh uprisings still were reported in outlying sections of the country. And the Shah told newsmen at a palace garden party yesterday his nation's treasury "is very empty."

"Immediate help is imperative," the Shah declared. "We need help in the next few days. We do not ask any nation in particular and we are not beggars. However, we must have help now if we are to save the country."

(From Washington, Associated Press reporter John Hightower wrote today that Iran's new regime appears to have excellent prospects of obtaining emergency financial aid if it asks it from the United States. Hightower said the final decision would be up to President Eisenhower but the whole range of U. S. relations with Iran already is under high level consideration.)

Would Take Any Help

Asked whether Iran would be willing to accept help from Russia, the Shah said, "we are ready to accept help from anybody."

His new finance minister, Ali Amini, underlined the emptiness of the treasury. His first job, he told newsmen, is "to find enough money to pay the August salaries of government employes."

"If help does not come," said the Shah, "we will have a nightmarish struggle with the present situation."

Iran's acute financial troubles result from her loss of oil markets following Mossadegh's nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's vast holdings in the country.

The stubborn old ex-premier's refusal to compensate Britain for the seized properties and lost oil revenues brought a British boycott of Iranian oil which cut off the royalties that had been the chief support of Iran's treasury.

No Rush With Britain

Neither the Shah nor Zahedi showed any public inclination, however, to get together with Britain. The monarch told a questioner yesterday it is "much too soon" to resume diplomatic relations with the British.

Zahedi said Saturday he had no intention of considering Britain's claims for compensation.

Most western observers concede that Mossadegh did such a good job of making the British the butt of aroused Iranian nationalism, the new government must be extremely cautious in any renewal of relations. They anticipate, however, that eventually Zahedi will be able to work out a "reasonable" settlement with the British.

It's Up to President

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP) — The new Iranian regime which ousted Premier Mossadegh last week appared today to have excellent prospects of obtaining emergency financial aid from the United States.

President Eisenhower will have to make the final decision on what would amount to a radical change in U.S. policy toward Iran, but officials noted that the situation in that troubled country has changed radically.

As a matter of fact, the whole range of U.S. relations with Iran

Three Collectors Cut Bids, Get Contracts

East Germany Is Given Concessions

Agreement Seen as Move to Bolster Election in September

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Soviet Union has made sweeping concessions in a new pact with East Germany. The Kremlin agreed to exchange ambassadors with the Soviet occupation zone, end reparations after Jan. 1, cut occupations costs, provide additional economic aid and release some German war prisoners.

Joint communique announcing the pact was issued yesterday at the end of a four-day conference between top Russian leaders, including Premier Georgi Malenkov, and an East German delegation headed by Premier Otto Grotewohl.

(Western observers in Germany viewed the agreement as an effort to prop up the wobbly Grotewohl regime. Its prestige has been at a low ebb since the June 17 hunger riots in the east zone.

Russian Attempt

(The observers also considered the pact an obvious Russian attempt to undermine the pro-western government of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, now locked in a life-and-death election campaign against the Socialist in preparation for the Sept. 6 Parliamentary elections.)

The announcement of the new pact closely followed a personal attack on Adenauer by Malenkov. The Kremlin chief declared in a radio broadcast the West German chancellor, who has favored German rearmament and close ties with the west, was leading his country down the road to war.

Malenkov's speech and the communique also renewed Soviet demands for a provisional all-German government to prepare for elections and eventual German unity.

The communique, signed by both Malenkov and Grotewohl, dis-

Slashes of $1,000 Made — Glass, Cans Banned in Garbage

Three garbage collectors, who cut former bids by $1,000 each, gained three-year contracts with the Board of Public Works today.

Charles Sorbello, of Port Ewen; William U. Kessler of Linderman avenue extension, and Kasper Gerlach, of the Sawkill road, on bids of $5,500 each plus 50 gallons of gas a week, were awarded contracts at a special BPW meeting this morning.

The board also took steps to make householders keep all garbage collected locally free of tin cans and glass.

The collectors had been awarded contracts at about $3,300 a year plus 50 gallons of gas, but because of a regulation requiring the cooking of garbage used for the feeding of pigs, the collectors were required to submit new bids.

Had Asked $6,500

Each asked $6,500 a year plus 50 gallons of gas weekly and the BPW rejected this stating it appeared too high as compared to bids elsewhere.

The collectors resubmitted the same figures when bids were opened again recently, but the board received one of $5,000 plus 35 gallons of gas a week from Edgar P. Elliott, of Columbia street, Sunset Park.

It was then announced that no garbage would be collected Saturday, but the collectors were reported making their rounds today, and appeared at the meeting with the new bids.

Will Give Warnings

The board decided to campaign to keep garbage free of tin cans, glass and similar refuse, through the issuance of tags which the collectors can tie to garbage containers.

Tags issued first will be warnings against the practice of combining garbage and other such refuse, and if these are not heeded, householders will be notified

No Special Favors, Coleman Declares, On Tax Situation

Racketeer, Pillar of Church to Get Same Rulings From Eisenhower Administration

Boston, Aug. 24 (AP)—Commissioner of Internal Revenue T. Coleman Andrews has gone before the American Bar Association convention with a warning that business and professional men can expect no special tax favors from the Eisenhower Administration.

Speaking at a convention luncheon yesterday, he said the racketeer and "the so-called pillar of the church" will receive identical treatment.

He said his department will be especially harsh on unwarranted "entertainment expenses" for income tax deductions.

Andrews pointed out that working widows cannot, under present law, deduct baby-sitter expenses in their income taxes, "so it is a gross injustice when businessmen and others abuse the entertainment expense privilege."

Agents Alerted

He said his agents have been alerted to watch for abuses in country club dues, maintenance of cars and yachts, travel for personal reasons and vacation visits.

Andrews also issued a "friendly warning" to American Bar Association delegates not to try to claim as tax deductions the expense of bringing their wives to the Boston convention.

The 50,000-member association formally opened its 75th annual convention today with a welcoming speech by Gov. Christian A. Herter, followed by a report from association President Robert G. Storey of Dallas, Texas.

Fair Trial Program

A 12-point program on fair trial and free press was presented to the convention yesterday by Edwin M. Otterbourg, president of the New York County Lawyers Association.

Otterbourg said "if these two great liberties—the right to a fair trial and the right to a free press—are permitted to continue to conflict, obviously the way soon will be opened for unfair trials on the one hand and for unbridled license on the other."

He said lawyers have done nothing to enforce a canon of the organized bar that statement by attorneys to the press generally should be condemned because they "may interfere with a fair trial in the courts and otherwise prejudice the due administration of justice."

On the other hand, he said, "the news and media of publicity have gone on without any realistic attempt to police themselves."

Otterbourg added that "so far as the collection of news and its reporting in connection with court trials are concerned, the law of the jungle still applies."

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The position of the treasury Aug. 20, 1953: Net budget receipts $293,993,233.90; budget expenditures, $229,817,895.04; cash balance, $8,303,738,024.17; budget receipts fiscal year July 1, $6,441,974,370.02; budget expenditures fiscal year, $10,044,426,678.17; budget deficit, $3,602,452,318.15; total debt, $272,703,388,804.19; gold assets, $22,227,726,423.12.

Whereabouts of General, Lin Piao, Puzzle to West

BY FRED HAMPSON

Hong Kong, Aug. 24 (AP)—In the midst of international concern over Red China's next move, now that her armies are free of battle in Korea, one mysterious question crops up. What has become of Lin Piao, once considered China's greatest military genius next to Chu Teh, commander in chief of China's Communist armies?

Is Lin Piao in disfavor with his Red bosses? Is he dead? Or is he somewhere deep in China's interior building up a massive army in preparation for a move toward the tempting targets of southeast Asia?

Lin still is listed as commander of the huge Fourth Field Army and head of the central south China administrative district, two of the biggest jobs in Red China.

But it has been many months since he presided at a central south regional meeting. Whenever the Fourth Field Army is mentioned, Yeh Chien-Ying, military governor of Kwangtung provice appears to be running it as deputy commander.

Lin was leader of the Fourth when it swooped down from Manchuria through the center of the nation and chased Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists out of Canton. Chiang was driven to Chungking, Kweichow and ultimately to Formosa.

It was Lin's swift hordes that kept Chiang on the run while other more publicized Red generals were capturing Nanking and Shanghai.

After the Nationalist debacle in 1949, Lin seemed to be climbing politically. There were rumors he would replace aging Chu Teh as chief of staff.

But nothing happened. In 1951, it was rumored he was wounded by a would-be assassin as he debarked from a plane in Hankow, but apparently recovered.

During all the fanfare about the "people's volunteer army" fighting in Korea and the new five year plan for Red China, Lin was not mentioned.

Most observers here are wondering if Lin Piao's sun is past its Zenith.

Appeal Is Made

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP) — A Senate subcommittee has appealed to present and former government employes for help in learning "the identity of the Communists who are presumably still in government." The appeal came from the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Internal Security, which during the past year has been hunting for Communist infiltration of government agencies extending back 20 years. Tehran, Iran, Aug. 24 (AP)—Official sources announced today that police have transferred ex-Premier Mohammed Mossadegh from the comfortable quarters of the Tehran Officers' Club to a jail cell.

Mossadegh, clad in pajamas, surrendered last week after a bloody coup by supporters of Shah Mohammed Reza Pehlevi took over the government he had refused to relinquish.

The wily and weepy old Nationalist leader was interned in the plush Officers Club to await trial, possibly on charges of treason for refusing to obey the Shah's order a week ago to hand the premiership over to Gen. Fazollah Zahedi.

Following Mossadegh's initial success in balking the royal order to get out, the Shah and his queen flew to a brief exile.

The Iranian ruler returned after Zahedi last Wednesday led the Royalist coup that finally led to Mosadegh's downfall. It was not disclosed in what jail Mossadegh is held.

Troubles Not Over

Even with Mossadegh a prisoner, the new Zahedi government's troubles were not over.

Small, scattered pro-Mossadegh uprisings still were reported in outlying sections of the country. And the Shah told newsmen at a palace garden party yesterday his nation's treasury "is very empty."

"Immediate help is imperative," the Shah declared. "We need help in the next few days. We do not ask any nation in particular and we are not beggars. However, we must have help now if we are to save the country."

(From Washington, Associated Press reporter John Hightower wrote today that Iran's new regime appears to have excellent prospects of obtaining emergency financial aid if it asks it from the United States. Hightower said the final decision would be up to President Eisenhower but the whole range of U. S. relations with Iran already is under high level consideration.)

Would Take Any Help

Asked whether Iran would be willing to accept help from Russia, the Shah said, "we are ready to accept help from anybody."

His new finance minister, Ali Amini, underlined the emptiness of the treasury. His first job, he told newsmen, is to find enough money to pay the August salaries of government employes.

"If help does not come," said the Shah, "we will have a nightmarish struggle with the present situation."

Iran's acute financial troubles result from her loss of oil markets following Mossadegh's nationalization of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's vast holdings in the country.

The stubborn old ex-premier's refusal to compensate Britain for the seized properties and lost oil revenues brought a British boycott of Iranian oil which cut off the royalties that had been the chief support of Iran's treasury.

No Rush With Britain

Neither the Shah nor Zahedi showed any public inclination, however, to get together with Britain. The monarch told a questioner yesterday it is "much too soon" to resume diplomatic relations with the British.

Zahedi said Saturday he had no intention of considering Britain's claims for compensation.

Most western observers concede that Mossadegh did such a good job of making the British the butt of aroused Iranian nationalism, the new government must be extremely cautious in any renewal of relations. They anticipate, however, that eventually Zahedi will be able to work out a "reasonable" settlement with the British.

It's Up to President

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP) — The new Iranian regime which ousted Premier Mossadegh last week appared today to have excellent prospects of obtaining emergency financial aid from the United States.

President Eisenhower will have to make the final decision on what would amount to a radical change in U.S. policy toward Iran, but officials noted that the situation in that troubled country has changed radically.

As a matter of fact, the whole range of U.S. relations with Iran

Slashes of $1,000 Made — Glass, Cans Banned in Garbage

Three garbage collectors, who cut former bids by $1,000 each, gained three-year contracts with the Board of Public Works today.

Charles Sorbello, of Port Ewen; William U. Kessler of Linderman avenue extension, and Kasper Gerlach, of the Sawkill road, on bids of $5,500 each plus 50 gallons of gas a week, were awarded contracts at a special BPW meeting this morning.

The board also took steps to make householders keep all garbage collected locally free of tin cans and glass.

The collectors had been awarded contracts at about $3,300 a year plus 50 gallons of gas, but because of a regulation requiring the cooking of garbage used for the feeding of pigs, the collectors were required to submit new bids.

Had Asked $6,500

Each asked $6,500 a year plus 50 gallons of gas weekly and the BPW rejected this stating it appeared too high as compared to bids elsewhere.

The collectors resubmitted the same figures when bids were opened again recently, but the board received one of $5,000 plus 35 gallons of gas a week from Edgar P. Elliott, of Columbia street, Sunset Park.

It was then announced that no garbage would be collected Saturday, but the collectors were reported making their rounds today, and appeared at the meeting with the new bids.

Will Give Warnings

The board decided to campaign to keep garbage free of tin cans, glass and similar refuse, through the issuance of tags which the collectors can tie to garbage containers.

Tags issued first will be warnings against the practice of combining garbage and other such refuse, and if these are not heeded, householders will be notified

East Germany Is Given Concessions

Agreement Seen as Move to Bolster Election in September

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Soviet Union has made sweeping concessions in a new pact with East Germany. The Kremlin agreed to exchange ambassadors with the Soviet occupation zone, end reparations after Jan. 1, cut occupations costs, provide additional economic aid and release some German war prisoners.

Joint communique announcing the pact was issued yesterday at the end of a four-day conference between top Russian leaders, including Premier Georgi Malenkov, and an East German delegation headed by Premier Otto Grotewohl.

(Western observers in Germany viewed the agreement as an effort to prop up the wobbly Grotewohl regime. Its prestige has been at a low ebb since the June 17 hunger riots in the east zone.

Russian Attempt

(The observers also considered the pact an obvious Russian attempt to undermine the pro-western government of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, now locked in a life-and-death election campaign against the Socialist in preparation for the Sept. 6 Parliamentary elections.)

The announcement of the new pact closely followed a personal attack on Adenauer by Malenkov. The Kremlin chief declared in a radio broadcast the West German chancellor, who has favored German rearmament and close ties with the west, was leading his country down the road to war.

Malenkov's speech and the communique also renewed Soviet demands for a provisional all-German government to prepare for elections and eventual German unity.

The communique, signed by both Malenkov and Grotewohl, dis-

Racketeer, Pillar of Church to Get Same Rulings From Eisenhower Administration

Boston, Aug. 24 (AP)—Commissioner of Internal Revenue T. Coleman Andrews has gone before the American Bar Association convention with a warning that business and professional men can expect no special tax favors from the Eisenhower Administration.

Speaking at a convention luncheon yesterday, he said the racketeer and "the so-called pillar of the church" will receive identical treatment.

He said his department will be especially harsh on unwarranted "entertainment expenses" for income tax deductions.

Andrews pointed out that working widows cannot, under present law, deduct baby-sitter expenses in their income taxes, "so it is a gross injustice when businessmen and others abuse the entertainment expense privilege."

Agents Alerted

He said his agents have been alerted to watch for abuses in country club dues, maintenance of cars and yachts, travel for personal reasons and vacation visits.

Andrews also issued a "friendly warning" to American Bar Association delegates not to try to claim as tax deductions the expense of bringing their wives to the Boston convention.

The 50,000-member association formally opened its 75th annual convention today with a welcoming speech by Gov. Christian A. Herter, followed by a report from association President Robert G. Storey of Dallas, Texas.

Fair Trial Program

A 12-point program on fair trial and free press was presented to the convention yesterday by Edwin M. Otterbourg, president of the New York County Lawyers Association.

Otterbourg said "if these two great liberties—the right to a fair trial and the right to a free press—are permitted to continue to conflict, obviously the way soon will be opened for unfair trials on the one hand and for unbridled license on the other."

He said lawyers have done nothing to enforce a canon of the organized bar that statement by attorneys to the press generally should be condemned because they "may interfere with a fair trial in the courts and otherwise prejudice the due administration of justice."

On the other hand, he said, "the news and media of publicity have gone on without any realistic attempt to police themselves."

Otterbourg added that "so far as the collection of news and its reporting in connection with court trials are concerned, the law of the jungle still applies."

Whereabouts of General, Lin Piao, Puzzle to West

BY FRED HAMPSON

Hong Kong, Aug. 24 (AP)—In the midst of international concern over Red China's next move, now that her armies are free of battle in Korea, one mysterious question crops up. What has become of Lin Piao, once considered China's greatest military genius next to Chu Teh, commander in chief of China's Communist armies?

Is Lin Piao in disfavor with his Red bosses? Is he dead? Or is he somewhere deep in China's interior building up a massive army in preparation for a move toward the tempting targets of southeast Asia?

Lin still is listed as commander of the huge Fourth Field Army and head of the central south China administrative district, two of the biggest jobs in Red China.

But it has been many months since he presided at a central south regional meeting. Whenever the Fourth Field Army is mentioned, Yeh Chien-Ying, military governor of Kwangtung provice appears to be running it as deputy commander.

Lin was leader of the Fourth when it swooped down from Manchuria through the center of the nation and chased Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists out of Canton. Chiang was driven to Chungking, Kweichow and ultimately to Formosa.

It was Lin's swift hordes that kept Chiang on the run while other more publicized Red generals were capturing Nanking and Shanghai.

After the Nationalist debacle in 1949, Lin seemed to be climbing politically. There were rumors he would replace aging Chu Teh as chief of staff.

But nothing happened. In 1951, it was rumored he was wounded by a would-be assassin as he debarked from a plane in Hankow, but apparently recovered.

During all the fanfare about the "people's volunteer army" fighting in Korea and the new five year plan for Red China, Lin was not mentioned.

Most observers here are wondering if Lin Piao's sun is past its Zenith.

Woman Fined $25 On Driving Charge

A New York woman was fined $25 on a reckless driving charge after the automobile she was driving swung wide on a turn and struck a parked car near the Woodland Valley Inn on the Onteora Trail about 12:05 p. m. Saturday, Cpl. Ray Dunn of the state police at Phoenicia reported.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward France of Pine Hill, Mrs. Luise Baronaki 49, of New York pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Cpl. Dunn said Mrs. Baronaki was turning from the Onteora Trail into the Woodland Valley road, went off the road, missed a pole and struck an automobile belonging to Majorie Griffin, proprietor of the Woodland Valley Inn, which was parked near the Inn's kitchen door approximately 18 feet from the highway. No one was reported injured.

PlaneForced Down Continues Journey

A pilot who made a forced landing in a Napanoch wheat field Friday night made a successful take-off Saturday and continued on his journey, state police reported.

Charles Woerner, 30, of Geneva, O., landed in a ploughed wheat field belonging to Chandler Young about 8:15 p. m. Friday after he mistook the Merriman Dam at Lackawack for the Ashokan Dam while he was flying his single engine plane from Erie, Pa., to Kingston. Fearing he would be unable to arrive at the Kingston-Ulster Airport before dark, he made a successful forced landing, remained overnight at Napanoch and took off from the wheat field the next day, troopers said.

Atom Control

mary the program of the Eisenhower administration for cutting back the armaments burden and getting rid of atomic weapons.

Would Be Limited

Under this program, armies would be limited in such a way that the Soviet Union would not maintain overwhelming manpower under arms as compared with the west, even more important, however, Russia — along with other participating nations—would have to agree to international control of atomic energy and to the enforcement of all arms limitations and atomic weapons bans by adequate safeguards, including a practical system of inspection under the United Nations."

These provisions would mean that non-Russian, non-Communist representatives of an international atomic control body would have to be given the freedom of Russia.

The Iron Curtain as an instrument of isolation would be punched full of holes, the presence of foreigners in the Soviet Union would become commonplace, the knowledge of the outside world which the Kremlin seeks to keep from its people and the knowledge of Russia which it seeks to keep from the outside world would inevitably spread. The carefully cultivated secrecy of the Soviet Union of today would cease to exist.

Told to Sever Ties

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The AFL ordered all its local affiliates yesterday to sever ties with the Carpenters Union, which quit the AFL two weeks ago. The Carpenters Union, with some 820,000 members, left the parent organization in protest against a "no raiding" agreement with the CIO. Some AFL officials, however, have said they expect it to return. Under the instructions sent out yesterday, local AFL groups would have to replace members of the Carpenters Union who have been elected to office.

Volunteer's Talents No Longer Desired

Mount Vernon, Aug. 24 (AP)—Thomas E. Heckett, 23, a chauffeur by trade and a volunteer fireman by avocation, indulged his talents today in unhappy combination.

Police said that in the middle of the night Heckett tiptoed into a fire house and drove out with a $21,000 hose truck.

Paid on-duty firemen didn't hear him, but a few minutes later the whole neighborhood did as the engine siren sounded through the streets.

Several patrol cars rounded up the engine after a headlight had been smashed by a bullet fired in warning.

Windows Broken In Restaurant, Woodstock School

Woodstock, Aug. 24—Vandals broke a plate glass window in Galeena's Restaurant and three windows in the kindergarten room of the Woodstock Elementary School early Sunday morning.

Cpl. Ray Dunn of the state police, who is investigating with Constable Clarence Snyder, said today that it is believed the Galeena's Restaurant window, at the corner of Tinker street and Tannery Brook road, was broken between 3:30 and 4 a. m. Sunday. A witness told police he saw the vandals flee in a car down Mill road going toward Route 375 from the village.

The windows in the school, which overlook the blacktop playground, apparently had been broken by beer bottles hurled through them, he said.

New York, Aug. 24 (AP) — The stock market slipped lower today in a quiet manner.

The decline went to between 1 and 2 points at the most with the majority of issues posting small fractional losses. Gains were small and scattered.

Railroads were lower after starting mostly unchanged to higher. Some technicians contend the railroads are likely to point the market's direction.

Denver & Rio Grande was off around a point in its reaction from a gain of 4 points Friday. Directors meet for dividend action this week. Illinois Central, whose directors raised the dividend last week, lost better than a point today.

Other major divisions leaning lower included air lines, coppers, chemicals, distillers, and motors. Mixed divisions included steels and aircrafts. The oils, utilities, and radio-televisions held steady.

Mossadegh Jailed

is already under high level consideration. If the Shah's new prime minister, Fazollah Zahedi, urgently asks assistance, he seems very likely to get it.

The shah told news men in Iran yesterday that his country must be helped in the next few days. He said the treasury is empty.

This came as no surprise to American experts on Iran, who have known for months that the country's finances were in a bad way.

The United States regards Zahedi's administration as an opportunity for a new deal in Iran. It ousted Mossadegh, a man who was considered fanatically opposed to making any settlement with the British on the long oil dispute and who was risking communist increase in power to consolidate his own hold on his country.

Is Considered Reasonable

Zahedi is regarded as an ardent nationalist but also as a reasonable man. U. S. officials hope he will be able to stabilize his country and that eventually he will undertake some kind of reasonable settlement with the British.

They say he cannot move fast on the oil question, however, because popular passions are too high.

Iran has been without any revenue from its billion-dollar oil industry since the industry was nationalized two years ago. The government formerly got, directly and indirectly, more than 100 million dollars a year from oil, according to experts here.

The United States offered several months ago to advance 133 million dollars to the Iranian government against future oil deliveries—provided Iran and Britain could end their two-year-old dispute. This offer collapsed, but the fact remains that the United States is anxious to get Iran on its feet again.

Officials indicated it will do anything within reason to accomplish that if and as the new regime at Tehran demonstrates ability to deal realistically with its own domestic and international problems.

Carpenter Union Ban Finds Local Leaders Uncertain

Kingston and Ulster county AFL leaders today were uncertain as to what effect the order from Washington expelling the Carpenters Union from the New York local and state Building Trades Council will have locally.

Yerry Out of Town

George E. Yerry, Jr., business agent for three carpenters union locals, the Kingston Metal Trades Council, and several other AFL groups, is vacationing this week and could not be contacted for comment. At his office on Main street, it was reported that as far as is known, he has received no official notification on the severance of the carpenters unions from the AFL councils.

Other union men questioned today, as well as a local attorney who has handled a number of labor cases, all said they knew nothing of the situation except what they read in the newspapers.

Not Guilty Plea Entered in Court On Fence Dispute

Morris Monashefsky, of 43 Roosevelt avenue, appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today on a charge of malicious mischief brought by Patrick Amendola, of 450 Albany avenue, on information by the latter's wife.

Attorney Andrew J. Cook, who appeared for the defendant, entered a plea of not guilty, asked for time to prepare his case for trial, and the judge set Sept. 1 as the date for the next appearance. John Schick represented the district attorney's office.

The defendant's attorney said the charge arises from a dispute over a fence along the property of the Quality Maple Block Co., of Deyo street, with which the defendant is connected.

Civil Action Pending

A civil action, also arising from the dispute, is pending and Monashefsky has obtained a temporary injunction restraining Amendola from fencing the area. It is claimed that the fence interferes with the use of a railroad track used by the maple block plant.

Mrs. Amendola, several days ago, claimed she was injured when a section of the fence fell against her. A police report on this said: "A fence was placed and then taken down," and "in the process of these maneuvers the fence fell on Mrs. Amendola."

A disorderly conduct charge brought by Monashefsky against Amendola is also pending in city court.

Gold Theft Reported

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Police said today that burglars cut a big hole through an eight-inch wall over the weekend, forced a safe and stole $5,000 worth of gold from a midtown gold-casting company. The theft occurred in the sixth floor headquarters of the Hamilton Casting Co., 52 West 46th street. Entrance to the shop was through a hole about two-and-a-half feet square.

Woman Fined $25 On Driving Charge

A New York woman was fined $25 on a reckless driving charge after the automobile she was driving swung wide on a turn and struck a parked car near the Woodland Valley Inn on the Onteora Trail about 12:05 p. m. Saturday, Cpl. Ray Dunn of the state police at Phoenicia reported.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward France of Pine Hill, Mrs. Luise Baronaki 49, of New York pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Cpl. Dethroning of Sultan Will Be Heard by UN

United Nations, Aug. 24 (AP)—The United Nations Security Council will meet at 2 p. m. (EST) Wednesday to take up the Asian-Arab complaint that France unlawfully threw the Sultan of Morocco off his throne.

The position the United States will take, and what countries will follow its lead, was a question. The United States delegation is awaiting instructions from Washington.

PlaneForced Down Continues Journey

A pilot who made a forced landing in a Napanoch wheat field Friday night made a successful take-off Saturday and continued on his journey, state police reported.

Charles Woerner, 30, of Geneva, O., landed in a ploughed wheat field belonging to Chandler Young about 8:15 p. m. Friday after he mistook the Merriman Dam at Lackawack for the Ashokan Dam while he was flying his single engine plane from Erie, Pa., to Kingston. Fearing he would be unable to arrive at the Kingston-Ulster Airport before dark, he made a successful forced landing, remained overnight at Napanoch and took off from the wheat field the next day, troopers said.

Firemen Are Called

Firemen were called by telephone and an alarm from Box 2121, East Union and Chambers streets, at 4:58 a. m., Sunday to check a blaze in some old clothes near 22 East Union street. Deputy Fire Chief Harold Sanford investigated reports at about 3:30 a. m., Sunday that residents in the Clinton Avenue, Franklin and Oak street area complained of a pungent smoke there. Atom Control mary the program of the Eisenhower administration for cutting back the armaments burden and getting rid of atomic weapons.

Would Be Limited

Under this program, armies would be limited in such a way that the Soviet Union would not maintain overwhelming manpower under arms as compared with the west, even more important, however, Russia — along with other participating nations—would have to agree to international control of atomic energy and to the enforcement of all arms limitations and atomic weapons bans by adequate safeguards, including a practical system of inspection under the United Nations."

These provisions would mean that non-Russian, non-Communist representatives of an international atomic control body would have to be given the freedom of Russia.

The Iron Curtain as an instrument of isolation would be punched full of holes, the presence of foreigners in the Soviet Union would become commonplace, the knowledge of the outside world which the Kremlin seeks to keep from its people and the knowledge of Russia which it seeks to keep from the outside world would inevitably spread. The carefully cultivated secrecy of the Soviet Union of today would cease to exist.

Told to Sever Ties

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The AFL ordered all its local affiliates yesterday to sever ties with the Carpenters Union, which quit the AFL two weeks ago. The Carpenters Union, with some 820,000 members, left the parent organization in protest against a "no raiding" agreement with the CIO. Some AFL officials, however, have said they expect it to return. Under the instructions sent out yesterday, local AFL groups would have to replace members of the Carpenters Union who have been elected to office.

Volunteer's Talents No Longer Desired

Mount Vernon, Aug. 24 (AP)—Thomas E. Heckett, 23, a chauffeur by trade and a volunteer fireman by avocation, indulged his talents today in unhappy combination.

Police said that in the middle of the night Heckett tiptoed into a fire house and drove out with a $21,000 hose truck.

Paid on-duty firemen didn't hear him, but a few minutes later the whole neighborhood did as the engine siren sounded through the streets.

Several patrol cars rounded up the engine after a headlight had been smashed by a bullet fired in warning.

Windows Broken In Restaurant, Woodstock School

Woodstock, Aug. 24—Vandals broke a plate glass window in Galeena's Restaurant and three windows in the kindergarten room of the Woodstock Elementary School early Sunday morning.

Cpl. Ray Dunn of the state police, who is investigating with Constable Clarence Snyder, said today that it is believed the Galeena's Restaurant window, at the corner of Tinker street and Tannery Brook road, was broken between 3:30 and 4 a. m. Sunday. A witness told police he saw the vandals flee in a car down Mill road going toward Route 375 from the village.

The windows in the school, which overlook the blacktop playground, apparently had been broken by beer bottles hurled through them, he said.

Mossadegh Jailed

is already under high level consideration. If the Shah's new prime minister, Fazollah Zahedi, urgently asks assistance, he seems very likely to get it.

The shah told news men in Iran yesterday that his country must be helped in the next few days. He said the treasury is empty.

This came as no surprise to American experts on Iran, who have known for months that the country's finances were in a bad way.

The United States regards Zahedi's administration as an opportunity for a new deal in Iran. It ousted Mossadegh, a man who was considered fanatically opposed to making any settlement with the British on the long oil dispute and who was risking communist increase in power to consolidate his own hold on his country.

Is Considered Reasonable

Zahedi is regarded as an ardent nationalist but also as a reasonable man. U. S. officials hope he will be able to stabilize his country and that eventually he will undertake some kind of reasonable settlement with the British.

They say he cannot move fast on the oil question, however, because popular passions are too high.

Iran has been without any revenue from its billion-dollar oil industry since the industry was nationalized two years ago. The government formerly got, directly and indirectly, more than 100 million dollars a year from oil, according to experts here.

The United States offered several months ago to advance 133 million dollars to the Iranian government against future oil deliveries—provided Iran and Britain could end their two-year-old dispute. This offer collapsed, but the fact remains that the United States is anxious to get Iran on its feet again.

Officials indicated it will do anything within reason to accomplish that if and as the new regime at Tehran demonstrates ability to deal realistically with its own domestic and international problems.

Carpenter Union Ban Finds Local Leaders Uncertain

Kingston and Ulster county AFL leaders today were uncertain as to what effect the order from Washington expelling the Carpenters Union from the New York local and state Building Trades Council will have locally.

Yerry Out of Town

George E. Yerry, Jr., business agent for three carpenters union locals, the Kingston Metal Trades Council, and several other AFL groups, is vacationing this week and could not be contacted for comment. At his office on Main street, it was reported that as far as is known, he has received no official notification on the severance of the carpenters unions from the AFL councils.

Other union men questioned today, as well as a local attorney who has handled a number of labor cases, all said they knew nothing of the situation except what they read in the newspapers.

Not Guilty Plea Entered in Court On Fence Dispute

Morris Monashefsky, of 43 Roosevelt avenue, appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today on a charge of malicious mischief brought by Patrick Amendola, of 450 Albany avenue, on information by the latter's wife.

Attorney Andrew J. Cook, who appeared for the defendant, entered a plea of not guilty, asked for time to prepare his case for trial, and the judge set Sept. 1 as the date for the next appearance. John Schick represented the district attorney's office.

The defendant's attorney said the charge arises from a dispute over a fence along the property of the Quality Maple Block Co., of Deyo street, with which the defendant is connected.

Civil Action Pending

A civil action, also arising from the dispute, is pending and Monashefsky has obtained a temporary injunction restraining Amendola from fencing the area. It is claimed that the fence interferes with the use of a railroad track used by the maple block plant.

Mrs. Amendola, several days ago, claimed she was injured when a section of the fence fell against her. A police report on this said: "A fence was placed and then taken down," and "in the process of these maneuvers the fence fell on Mrs. Amendola."

A disorderly conduct charge brought by Monashefsky against Amendola is also pending in city court.

Gold Theft Reported

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Police said today that burglars cut a big hole through an eight-inch wall over the weekend, forced a safe and stole $5,000 worth of gold from a midtown gold-casting company. The theft occurred in the sixth floor headquarters of the Hamilton Casting Co., 52 West 46th street. Entrance to the shop was through a hole about two-and-a-half feet square.

Nisei's Heroic Stand in Korea Rated One of Many by Minority

By RELMAN MORIN

New York (AP)—There was a story in the papers the other day that set me thinking about that painfully familiar word, "minorities."

An American sergeant, freed in Korea, was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. This is America's highest military decoration, and as you might expect, the citation reads: "His indomitable heroism and consummate devotion to duty reflect the utmost glory on himself and uphold the highest traditions of the military service."

The sergeant's name is Hiroshi Miyamura.

Nobody will ever know how many guys named Smith, Jones, Brown, McLeod and O'Rourke are alive today because he stayed behind, alone, blasting with a machinegun.

Nor can we ever estimate how much this country owes the 442nd Regimental Combat Team — although the army tried by hanging more combat medals, per man, on that outfit than any other in the last war. It was composed exclusively of American-born Japanese.

Other Side of Picture

That's the good side of the picture. But there is another.

How many potential Medal of Honor winners, how many artists and scientists, how many plain good citizens, have been lost to America because the concept of minorities still persists? What does it cost us, every day, to set people apart by reason of race or color?

Here is one case:

During the last war, this writer was a prisoner of the Japanese for about a year. There was an investigation on charges of espionage.

The interpreter was a bright young fellow who spoke perfect English. One day, he took a ferocious risk. He told me he was an American, born in California. Two of his brothers were then serving in the American army. He had been impressed into the Japanese army.

Victim of 'Yellow Peril'

"If you ever get home," he said, 'I wish you'd deliver a message to my family. Tell them I'd like to be with my brothers—in the army."

And how did he happen to be in the wrong uniform?

"You come from California," he said. "You remember how it was."

I knew what he meant. They were the days of the "yellow peril," the Japanese "picture brides," and all the wierd nonsense about how "the Japs" were all spies and planning to take over the Los Angeles city hall any minute now.

What was worse, they used to work in their truck gardens on Saturdays and Sundays. How can you compete with a sinister Oriental who works on Sunday? It was strictly unfair, dirty pool.

The fact that the Japanese were practically model citizens mattered not at all. A Japanese name seldom, if ever, appeared in the crime news. During the depression, none was on relief rolls. They always were among the first to meet their quotas in the community chest and Red Cross drives. Their homes and stores, and the very streets in "Little Tokyo," were spotlessly clean.

That didn't help much in those days. You see, the configuration of their eyes was different from ours.

Grabbed by Japanese

"Finally, I couldn't take it any more," he said. "Especially in high school, I felt as though I didn't belong. I thought, 'okay, if I'm not an American, there's no use trying to be one.'"

So he left this country, went to Japan, got a job. When the war came, the Japanese army grabbed him. He was especially useful because of his language—and there was nothing he could do about it.

"I'm sorry now," he said. "I guess I was pretty dumb."

Who knows? He might have been another Sergeant Miyamura. He might have been one of those in the 442nd RCT. He might have contributed any number of invaluable services to the country that bore him.

How many like him have we lost? How many people are Communists, spies, traitors, festering enemies because "I felt as though I didn't belong?"

Tribal Trouble in Morocco

Moroccan tribesmen armed with wooden clubs demonstrate in Marrakech during the unrest which reached its climax Aug. 21 with the dethronement of the Sultan of Morocco and his replacement by French-backed Moulay Mohammed Ben Arafa. The former Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef was exiled to Corsica by the French.

Nationalists Flee Moroccan Arrest

Rabat, Morocco, Aug. 24 (AP) — Morocco's outlawed Istiqlal nationalist movement was on the run today, following French arrest of more than 1,000 Arabs suspected of anti-French activity.

The widespread roundup yesterday by French forces sent Istiqlal members underground or fleeing abroad. Jails were jammed.

Strong police and army units held the troubled North African protectorate in a tight grip following the exiling last week of pro-nationalist Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef and his replacement by his pro-French uncle, Mouley Mohammed Ben Arafa. With the former sultan in Corsica, the Istiqlal constituted the chief threat to the French.

As the cities and countryside rapidly returned to normal, possibility of a widespread revolt was considered remote.

Two Men Are Held In $50,000 Bail

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Two men, allegedly members of a Brooklyn holdup gang caught in a burst of police bullets, were held in $50,000 bail each yesterday.

Alfred Mancuso, 20, of Rochester and Peter Fazio, 22, of New York, were spotted with two other men near a restaurant shortly after it was reported robbed Saturday.

When police stopped to question them, Mancuso allegedly pulled a gun. The shots that followed wounded two of the men and nicked one of the policemen slightly.

The four surrendered. Police said they had taken $300 from the restaurant and robbed 10 patrons, including actor Lief Ericson.

The wounded men were confined in Bellevue Hospital's prison ward. They were identified as Richard Rivera, 17, of Brooklyn, and Charles Di Bartolo, 20, of New York.

At their arraignment, Mancuso and Fazio were said by a tavern owner and grocery operator to be members of a group that recently held up the two establishments.

A hearing was set for Wednesday.

OMAR BRADLEY: A SOLDIER'S SOLDIER

He looked a lot like a professor, and he certainly sounded like one. Yet he was a "soldier's soldier." And no man of the stature of General Omar Bradley can move off the American military stage without drawing the full measure of applause he merits.

He was the GI's soldier because he showed deep concern for the lives of his troops in battle. He was the generals' soldier because he won crucial battles, because he met and conquered the enemy's best.

In World War II he began as leader of the Army's Second Corps in the campaigns in North Africa and Sicily. At Normandy on D-Day, 1944, he took the First Army ashore. Later, as commander of all Army ground forces in France, he managed the St. Lo break-through which opened the way to the lightning liberation of the French.

His reputation as a master of field strategy and tactics grew as he carried his armies through the shock of the Battle of the Bulge, across the Rhine and into the German heartland for the final triumph.

After brief postwar service as head of the Veterans Administration, Bradley moved in as the first chairman of the newly created Joint Chiefs of Staff. In this post he served his country ably and unstintingly, while the currents of many controversies swirled about him. Through it all Bradley maintained his dignity and integrity.

Bradley was a fine general. But he was more. He was a man of character, and it was this which made him stand out, whether on the fields of France or in the corridors of official Washington.

TROUBLE WITH CONGRESS

"I have Congress on my hands." So President Cleveland groaned in a letter to a friend, after a particularly harrying session with the lawmakers. He put bluntly what nearly all presidents feel at one time or another, that Congress seems to enjoy thwarting them, and that they could do much better if that body were on vacation.

President Eisenhower almost certainly is not free from this sentiment. Not only have some of his plans, like increasing the federal debt limit, been positively vetoed by Congress, but others have gone through in forms not just what he would have liked, and still others have provoked clamor and attack which would annoy the thickest-skinned chief executive. These drawbacks were not always balanced by legislative victories for the administrative program. So probably the President is content to go it alone for a while without having Congress looking over his shoulder.

On its creditable side Congressional examination of administration men and measures has often uncovered grave defects which might otherwise have been overlooked. With all its defects our legislative system still works rather well.

As the years step by our problems apparently fade proportionately. The younger generation feels its trials are crushing, but everyone knows they are nothing. The middle generation frets over its problems, but somehow seems to be around for another day. And the older generation continues to observe that life was never so easy as in the years gone by.

QUIETER WORLD

In a world where the nations at odds with one another seem more numerous than those at peace, it is something to notice that in several regions friction is diminishing. India and Pakistan, where a few years ago massacres had almost reached the point of open war, are quiet now. They are still at odds over the disposition of Kashmir, but the differences are temperate and not inflamed. The Arab states and Israel, still hostile, are less violently so. If the Arab refugees from Palestine could find their economic sufferings relieved, the danger of an explosion in this quarter would be greatly reduced.

There still remain the conflicts in Korea and France's Southeast Asiatic territories, and of course there are the seething countries behind the Iron Curtain. But taken as a whole, the international scene is somewhat more hopeful than a year or two ago.

THE CHINESE ARMY

In terms of manpower, Communist China has produced a fighting army of 4,000,000 men, a part of which, at least, is modernly armed. This army has managed to defeat 17 nations, including the United States and Great Britain, in the Korean War.

While it is true that such experts as Generals Douglas MacArthur, Matthew Ridgway, James Van Fleet and Mark Clark have stated publicly that they could have defeated this army but for political intervention, the fact is that they did not defeat it. Mao Tze-tung, in the eyes of the Asiatics, can claim the credit that he is the first Oriental since 1905, when Japan defeated Russia, who held a coalition of Westerners at bay. This single historic assertion makes Soviet China the leading power in the Asiatic world, particularly as it happens to be true.

Politically, Soviet China has made tremendous strides. It has, with the assistance of Soviet Russia, managed to separate Great Britain from the United States on a basic issue, namely, the Asiatic program. More significantly, for the first time in the history of the United States, Canada, under the leadership of Lester B. Pearson, who in his younger years was influenced by the Institute of Pacific Relations, is not standing with the United States.

Furthermore, Mao Tze-tung has so scared Nehru of India that he has practically reduced him to an agent of Chinese policy in the Western world. Nehru cannot altogether be blamed for being frightened. He sees no force that is free to save Burma, Indo-China and Thailand from conquest by Soviet China.

India could be conquered from these areas and from Tibet, Assam, Nepal and Bhutan unless the United States, assisted by Great Britain, were to occupy India and use it as a base against Soviet China. That alternative, from Nehru's standpoint, would be just as bad.

While these are hypothetical questions to us, to Nehru and India they are important realities. Since the beginning of the Korean War, Nehru has lived in terror that Soviet China would defeat the so-called United Nations forces. With that twist which is so characteristic of Orientals, instead of supporting the United States, Nehru first adopted the position of a neutral, then became a broker for Stalin, and finally passed into an active protagonist of the Communist Chinese. It is a response to desperation.

History is made of such shifts in the relations among nations. From the beginning of the Korean War, this column has been calling attention, sometimes boringly so, to the dangers of permitting Soviet China to win this war and to become a world power. While some of our statesmen—most of them—were bogged down in European politics, Russia with historic prescience devoted itself to Asia.

Russia's reasoning was that no matter what happened in Europe, geography, manpower and natural resources made the East of Asia the center of the earth in the second half of the 20th century. It accepted as inevitable that China would ultimately explode into motion. Russia's objective was to keep China moving southward; otherwise such a force as has been let loose there would encroach upon Russian territories. Every aid was given to Mao Tze-tung to achieve this objective.

This movement began in 1919. I witnessed its early stages from 1919 to 1931 intimately. I was associated with the Student Movement in China in 1919 which was its first shock effort. I knew personally and closely most of the Chinese and many of the Russians involved in the earliest stages of this revolution. Since 1919, I have written probably millions of words about it but the West rejected an accurate picture because it preferred a romantic one.

The explosive force of Chinese imperialism is now in full motion. For the first time since the Emperor Chien Lung (1736-95), China is now expanding to every part of Asia into which the Chinese cultural influence has ever spread, but this will never satisfy Mao Tze-tung who will seek to incorporate into the Chinese orbit all the lands of East Asia, including India.

Today, India must be regarded as already within the Chinese orbit. Nothing can save the Hindu and Buddhist world except the strongest action to save that area from the frightened Nehru. It is a question not of the independence of India, but whether that country is part of the Communist Chinese world or the democratic Christian West.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

GLAND TYPE OF OVERWEIGHT

While 90 to 95 per cent of overweight is caused by eating more food than the body needs, it is only fair to say that the other 5 to 10 per cent of cases should be given the treatment they need—gland treatment. Although most of these gland cases of overweight are due to an underactive thyroid gland, other underactive glands causing overweight are the pituitary gland, lying on the floor of the skull; the adrenal glands, situated one above each kidney; and the male and female sex glands.

I have written before of how the underactivity of these different glands causes deposits of fat in various parts of the body—upper, middle and lower—whereas the underactivity of the thyroid gland causes excess fat over the entire body.

Although the underactivity of the pituitary gland causes excess fat across back of neck, shoulders, chest, upper arms and thighs, there is no excess fat in forearms and lower legs, and those afflicted usually have small hands and feet. There is, however, one variety of excess fat caused by underactivity of the pituitary gland called Cushing's syndrome (group of symptoms) that now is helped by use of X-rays.

Cushing's syndrome is faulty development of pituitary gland resulting in great deposit of fat with certain changes in the blood (great deficiency in one type of the red cells.)

In The "Scandinavian Medical Journal," Dr. S. G. Johnsen reports the results of treatment of Cushing's syndrome.. "X-ray irradiation to the pituitary gland was given to one 44-year-old man, 10 female patients between the ages of 15 and 60 with almost all the symptoms of fully developed Cushing's syndrome and one 11-year-old girl with mild Cushing's syndrome complicated by enormous obesity. The total X-ray dose administered varied from 6,000 to 15,900 units and six of the patients received a total dose of 9,000. Three patients whose progress was followed for 7 to 12 years recovered completely. Three other patients probably recovered. Four patients were improved temporarily and in two cases X-ray treatment failed entirely.

Dr. Johnsen states that the X-ray dosage given by him was larger than that given by other specialists and presumably explains why his results were better. X-ray treatment of pituitary gland gave such satisfactory results in these cases because the pituitary gland was more sensitive to X-rays and stimulated the adrenal glands to more activity which caused loss of fat.

Dr. Johnsen states that excessive stimulation of the pituitary gland should be the first method of treatment given in Cushing's syndrome because of the recovery in some cases and improvement in others.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington (NEA) — Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, director of Princeton's Institute for Advanced Study and the man who was in charge of building the first atomic bombs at Los Alamos, New Mexico, in 1945, gives as his own "casual, perhaps too rough guess" that Soviet Russia is about four years behind the U. S. in the development of atomic munitions.

Writing in "Foreign Affairs," Dr. Oppenheimer declares further, "I think that the scale of their operations is about half as bi as ours was" four years ago.

Applying this guess to the development of the hydrogen bomb as hinted by Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, Russia is about where the United States was in January, 1950, when President Truman announced that this country would proceed with development of the H-bomb.

In other words, in 1950 U. S. scientists had a pretty good idea that the H-bomb could be built, but they hadn't started to build the $1.4 billion Savannah river plant, and they hadn't made any 1951 and 1952 tests at Eniwetok.

UN Dues

As the United Nations General Assembly reconvenes in New York for its special session on the Korean armistice and peace conference, it is revealed that as of Aug. 1, only 15 of the 60 member nations have paid their 1953 dues in full to the world organization. The United States, which pays 35 per cent of the UN budget of $48 million, is one of the 15 that has paid up.

The largest amount owed was that of Soviet Russia, nearly $3 million in arrears. The smallest amount owed is Burma's $8000. The second largest balance due is Nationalist China's $2.4 million for this year. China is also behind on its assessments for 1951 and 1952. Ten other countries owe for last year, and four are still behind on their 1951 payments.

Red Terror

Dr. You Chan Yang, Korean ambassador to the United States, makes a general disclaimer that atrocities committed against American and other United Nations prisoners of war were the work of North Koreans.

"I should like to point out that these savages are not Koreans except in physical appearance," says the peppery ambassador. "They are second generation descendants of Koreans who fled into Siberia at the time of the Japanese occupation, and they have been indoctrinated with communism since birth."

Dr. Yang also declares that the original North Korean army was destroyed by General Douglas MacArthur's forces, and the civilian population of North Korea has been subjected since 1945 to the usual tactics of the "terror treatment courses" given such people by the Soviet system.

Korean Rebuilding

The U. S. Army is going to use American troops to help rebuild battered South Korea, but it won't be manual labor by ground troops and it will be combined with vigorous technical training for idle troops.

Communications outfits, for instance, instead of stringing wires and then tearing them down as in a normal training maneuver, will actually work at rebuilding South Korea's telephone system.

The same plan will also be applied to Army's Corps of Engineers. They will start rebuilding some of South Korea's battered roads, bridges, and railroads, just as though they were in training.

Port companies will also work on restoring the badly damaged South Korean, harbor and dock facilities.

But the plan is to have South Koreans do all of the actual labor, with U. S. troops providing technical supervision and know-how.

One problem which hasn't been settled yet is how to pay for the permanent equipment given to South Korea. The army can't use up its own equipment which might be sorely needed later if combat is resumed. The army also wants to show some budget savings as a result of the end of hostilities.

The present plan is to take equipment costs out of the $200 million Congress allowed the President to transfer from military funds for Korean rehabilitation.

Bankers in Washington

President Dwight G. Eisenhower's administration isn't just a team of businessmen—it's also a team of bankers. This was reported by the American Bankers Association, which will hold its annual convention in Washington in September, for the first time since the depression year of 1934.

As proof of its statement, ABA lists these bank directors holding high office in the Republican administration:

Secretary of Navy Robert B. Anderson of Dallas, Tex.

Deputy Secretary of Treasury W. Randolph Burgess of New York.

Administrative Assistant to the President Robert Cutler of Boston.

Director of the Budget Joseph M. Dodge of Detroit.

Indian Commissioner Glenn L. Emmons of Gallup, N. Mex.

Undersecretary of Treasury Marion B. Folsom of New York.

Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey of Cleveland.

Special Counsel to the President Thomas E. Stephens, New York.

Civil Servise Commission Chairman Philip Young of New York.

They Like It Hot

Washingtonian's are learning not to mop their brows and not to do any complaining about the capital's famous summer weather in front of Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Ezra Taft Benson.

This cabinet couple think the Washington climate is so mild they're actually bragging about it to their friends back home in Salt Lake City. Mrs. Benson simply reminds Washingtonian summer sufferers that Utah is rated as second hottest state in the Union this year.

Washington? It's wonderful.

New Jap Fleet

Japanese radio broadcasts have revealed that out of 500 who have applied for commissions in the new Japanese Coastal Safety Corps—which corresponds to the U. S. Coast Guard—some 300 are former Japanese Navy officers and a third of this number held high rank.

Among the applicants is Capt. Tsurayuki Hashimoto, former commander of the Jap submarine I-GO 58, which the Japanese say sank a U. S. cruiser carrying an A-bomb. Another is the former Commander Tadashi Nakajima, founder of the Kamikaze corps of suicide pilots. Still another was Commander Takeji Ueno, an Imperial Headquarters staff officer.

Since the Japanese Constitution prohibits the country from having a Navy, this Coastal Defense Corps is being built up as a new, first line sea frontier defense force for the islands.

Truman Was Told in 1945 of Soviet Spy Ring Within Administration

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 24—The most sensational report by a committee of Congress in a century or more of American history has just been unanimously approved and issued to the public by the Internal security Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate. For it shows the outline, design, and active participants in a deliberate conspiracy against the United States Government unparalleled since the treason of Aaron Burr.

The report tells that President Truman and other high officials were warned as early as November 1945 by a secret memorandum from the FBI that a Soviet spy ring existed within the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Names were given and the testimony of confessed Communists was furnished by the FBI. Nevertheless, in 1948 Mr. Truman was calling an attempted exposure of the whole thing a "red herring" intended, he said, by the Republicans to divert attention from legislative delays. The Democratic administration, moreover, up to to the very end of its term in January 1953 was denouncing the congressional investigations which had been bringing to light the facts about the Communist conspiracy.

Those Democratic members of Congress and campaign speakers, including Governor Stevenson, who have been proclaiming far and wide that the job of ferreting out Communists from government had better be left solely to the FBI will find by reading the new report that this isn't enough, especially if what the FBI turns up is consistently ignored. For the FBI itself cannot prosecute cases or even make public the damaging facts it has collected or ask for the indictment by a grand jury of a single suspect unless the President or the attorney general directs that such a specific step be taken.

All the Democratic and Republican members of the Senate's Internal Security Committee have signed the 26,000-word report, which is the result of nearly three years of investigative work and hearings. Senator Willis Smith, Democrat, of North Carolina and a former president of the American Bar Association, would unquestionably have signed the report but for his death a few weeks ago. He was known to have been shocked by the facts revealed in the large number of sessions of the committee in which he participated. His comments at the time were always in accord with those of the other members of the committee.

Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin has never been a member of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee and has had no part in its proceedings or in the making of its report. But the findings certainly vindicate many of the broad charges he has made, notably that the FBI's information was disregarded by the executive branch of the government under the last two administrations and that hence Congressional investigations became essential.

The new report shows that only two of the Soviet spy rings inside the American government have thus far been exposed and that two more rings—now known to have existed—have not yet been uncovered largely because of lack of information from and cooperation by key witnesses—American citizens—who hide behind the fifth amendment and who are being encouraged to continue to do so by "left wing" organizations and other defenders of the fifth amendment technique.

The committee report says:

"Despite the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other security agencies had reported extensive information about this Communist penetration, little was done by the executive branch to interrupt the Soviet operatives in their ascent in government until Congressional committees brought forth to public light the facts of the conspiracy....

"The Soviet international organization has carried on a successful and important penetration of the United States government and this penetration has not been fully exposed.

"This penetration has extended from the lower ranks to the top-level policy and operating positions in our government....

"In general, the Communists who infiltrated our government worked behind the scenes—guiding research and preparing memoranda on which basic American policies were set, writing speeches for cabinet officers, influencing Congressional investigations, drafting laws, manipulating administrative reorganizations—always serving the interest of their Soviet superiors.

"Thousands of diplomatic, political, military, scientific and economic secrets of the United States have been stolen by Soviet agents in our government and other persons closely connected with the Communists....

"Powerful groups and individuals within the executive branch were at work obstructing and weakening the effort to eliminate Soviet agents from positions in government."

The committee says that, according to evidence in its records, those involved "in the secret Communist underground included an executive assistant to the president of the United States, an assistant secretary of the treasury, a United States treasury attache in China, the secretary of the International Monetary Fund, the head of the Latin-American division of the office of strategic services, a member of the National Labor Relations Board, secretary of the National Labor Relations Board, chief counsel of the Senate subcommittee on civil liberties," and several others in wartime projects and boards.

The committee in its report touches on various incidents in the history of the last 20 years when strikes have been fomented at critical times, employers have been harassed by Labor Relations Board decisions in key industries, key unions have been influenced toward the Communist line, foreign policy has been shaped toward Soviet desires, and even Congressional committees on Capitol Hill have been infiltrated by Communist agents.

The Senate subcommittee makes a very important recommendation—that existing laws which permit Communists to escape indictment be revised so that the statute of limitations be lengthened, particularly for false swearing. For at present, unless the evidence of lying is obtained and prosecution begun within three years, there can be no punishment meted out. This is one reason why public condemnation, at least, through exposures by Congressional committees, is about the only way now to ostracize the men and women who were willing to betray their move about freely in various walks of life unknown to the public and unpunished for their misdeeds.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The Marshall girls, of Marshall, Tex., have lost another round in their fight for a court decision to outlaw the baby-sitter's Social Security tax and to me it begins to look as thought our federal courts will sustain all phases of the deal on political grounds regardless of the constitution. I admit prejudice in my essays on this, on the withholding phase of the income tax and the similar bilking of self-employed persons. But mine is a noble bigotry in favor of the U. S. Constitution and the constitutions of many of the several states.

The Court of Appeals of the Fifth Circuit, in New Orleans, turned down the Marshall girls in their appeal from the brusque dismissal of their original case by District Judge William H. Atwell, of Dallas. Now the Supreme Court probably will refuse to hear any further appeal. And, by the time the issue does reach the top in some other case, if it ever does, the potential shock to the national treasury and the hardship on the few old people who really have settled down to life on the old-age dole will over-awe the team and they will ratify the crime out of cowardice.

It took manhood in the court to demolish the NRA in the grotesque sick-chicken case, but that decision was all that saved this country from utter, total fascism at that time, as anyone who remembers that monstrous thing will tell you. This was a steal from Mussolini, with a parasitic bureaucracy centered in Washington and cells of infection imbedded in our tissue all over the country. It was going to regulate business, from the mines and forests through the factories to the counters of the five-and-dime, limiting prices and profits and even the zones of business, and of course, in consequence, the wages and hours of the workers.

Hugh S. Johnson, an obscure temporary brigadier of World War 1, a quaint frontiersman with a nose like J. P. Morgan's and a line of repartee and imagery that mingled the sweet New England poets with the cavalry sojers of the Indian wars, somehow turned up in Washington to "administer" this awesome work of the devil. Many of our business people and our editors went crazy and whooped the dam thing up with fanatical fervor and Hugh began tossing off blurts of quaintness that were a little too lurid to be casual, about cracking down on chiselers and his indifference to the dead-cats which he expected to be thrown at him.

To the day he died, Hugh stuck to the proposition that he was stuck with when he accepted the job. But I doubt that he felt anything but relief when the Supreme Court took him and us off the hook. He had a great streak of ham in him, but he was much more patriotic than the New Dealers whom he permitted to exploit the novelty of his personality. Being also too intelligent to doubt the danger to the constitution and our form of government which Congress had written into this idiots' delight, Hugh could not have mourned in his heart the de-

OMAR BRADLEY: A SOLDIER'S SOLDIER

He looked a lot like a professor, and he certainly sounded like one. Yet he was a "soldier's soldier." And no man of the stature of General Omar Bradley can move off the American military stage without drawing the full measure of applause he merits.

He was the GI's soldier because he showed deep concern for the lives of his troops in battle. He was the generals' soldier because he won crucial battles, because he met and conquered the enemy's best.

In World War II he began as leader of the Army's Second Corps in the campaigns in North Africa and Sicily. At Normandy on D-Day, 1944, he took the First Army ashore. Later, as commander of all Army ground forces in France, he managed the St. Lo break-through which opened the way to the lightning liberation of the French.

His reputation as a master of field strategy and tactics grew as he carried his armies through the shock of the Battle of the Bulge, across the Rhine and into the German heartland for the final triumph.

After brief postwar service as head of the Veterans Administration, Bradley moved in as the first chairman of the newly created Joint Chiefs of Staff. In this post he served his country ably and unstintingly, while the currents of many controversies swirled about him. Through it all Bradley maintained his dignity and integrity.

Bradley was a fine general. But he was more. He was a man of character, and it was this which made him stand out, whether on the fields of France or in the corridors of official Washington.

TROUBLE WITH CONGRESS

"I have Congress on my hands." So President Cleveland groaned in a letter to a friend, after a particularly harrying session with the lawmakers. He put bluntly what nearly all presidents feel at one time or another, that Congress seems to enjoy thwarting them, and that they could do much better if that body were on vacation.

President Eisenhower almost certainly is not free from this sentiment. Not only have some of his plans, like increasing the federal debt limit, been positively vetoed by Congress, but others have gone through in forms not just what he would have liked, and still others have provoked clamor and attack which would annoy the thickest-skinned chief executive. These drawbacks were not always balanced by legislative victories for the administrative program. So probably the President is content to go it alone for a while without having Congress looking over his shoulder.

On its creditable side Congressional examination of administration men and measures has often uncovered grave defects which might otherwise have been overlooked. With all its defects our legislative system still works rather well.

As the years step by our problems apparently fade proportionately. The younger generation feels its trials are crushing, but everyone knows they are nothing. The middle generation frets over its problems, but somehow seems to be around for another day. And the older generation continues to observe that life was never so easy as in the years gone by.

QUIETER WORLD

In a world where the nations at odds with one another seem more numerous than those at peace, it is something to notice that in several regions friction is diminishing. India and Pakistan, where a few years ago massacres had almost reached the point of open war, are quiet now. They are still at odds over the disposition of Kashmir, but the differences are temperate and not inflamed. The Arab states and Israel, still hostile, are less violently so. If the Arab refugees from Palestine could find their economic sufferings relieved, the danger of an explosion in this quarter would be greatly reduced.

There still remain the conflicts in Korea and France's Southeast Asiatic territories, and of course there are the seething countries behind the Iron Curtain. But taken as a whole, the international scene is somewhat more hopeful than a year or two ago.

The total X-ray dose administered varied from 6,000 to 15,900 units and six of the patients received a total dose of 9,000. Three patients whose progress was followed for 7 to 12 years recovered completely. Three other patients probably recovered. Four patients were improved temporarily and in two cases X-ray treatment failed entirely.

Dr. Johnsen states that the X-ray dosage given by him was larger than that given by other specialists and presumably explains why his results were better. X-ray treatment of pituitary gland gave such satisfactory results in these cases because the pituitary gland was more sensitive to X-rays and stimulated the adrenal glands to more activity which caused loss of fat.

Dr. Johnsen states that excessive stimulation of the pituitary gland should be the first method of treatment given in Cushing's syndrome because of the recovery in some cases and improvement in others.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington (NEA) — Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, director of Princeton's Institute for Advanced Study and the man who was in charge of building the first atomic bombs at Los Alamos, New Mexico, in 1945, gives as his own "casual, perhaps too rough guess" that Soviet Russia is about four years behind the U. S. in the development of atomic munitions.

Writing in "Foreign Affairs," Dr. Oppenheimer declares further, "I think that the scale of their operations is about half as bi as ours was" four years ago.

Applying this guess to the development of the hydrogen bomb as hinted by Soviet Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, Russia is about where the United States was in January, 1950, when President Truman announced that this country would proceed with development of the H-bomb.

In other words, in 1950 U. S. scientists had a pretty good idea that the H-bomb could be built, but they hadn't started to build the $1.4 billion Savannah river plant, and they hadn't made any 1951 and 1952 tests at Eniwetok.

UN Dues

As the United Nations General Assembly reconvenes in New York for its special session on the Korean armistice and peace conference, it is revealed that as of Aug. 1, only 15 of the 60 member nations have paid their 1953 dues in full to the world organization. The United States, which pays 35 per cent of the UN budget of $48 million, is one of the 15 that has paid up.

The largest amount owed was that of Soviet Russia, nearly $3 million in arrears. The smallest amount owed is Burma's $8000. The second largest balance due is Nationalist China's $2.4 million for this year. China is also behind on its assessments for 1951 and 1952. Ten other countries owe for last year, and four are still behind on their 1951 payments.

Red Terror

Dr. You Chan Yang, Korean ambassador to the United States, makes a general disclaimer that atrocities committed against American and other United Nations prisoners of war were the work of North Koreans.

"I should like to point out that these savages are not Koreans except in physical appearance," says the peppery ambassador. "They are second generation descendants of Koreans who fled into Siberia at the time of the Japanese occupation, and they have been indoctrinated with communism since birth."

Dr. Yang also declares that the original North Korean army was destroyed by General Douglas MacArthur's forces, and the civilian population of North Korea has been subjected since 1945 to the usual tactics of the "terror treatment courses" given such people by the Soviet system.

Korean Rebuilding

The U. S. Army is going to use American troops to help rebuild battered South Korea, but it won't be manual labor by ground troops and it will be combined with vigorous technical training for idle troops.

Communications outfits, for instance, instead of stringing wires and then tearing them down as in a normal training maneuver, will actually work at rebuilding South Korea's telephone system.

The same plan will also be applied to Army's Corps of Engineers. They will start rebuilding some of South Korea's battered roads, bridges, and railroads, just as though they were in training.

Port companies will also work on restoring the badly damaged South Korean harbor and dock facilities.

But the plan is to have South Koreans do all of the actual labor, with U. S. troops providing technical supervision and know-how.

One problem which hasn't been settled yet is how to pay for the permanent equipment given to South Korea. The army can't use up its own equipment which might be sorely needed later if combat is resumed. The army also wants to show some budget savings as a result of the end of hostilities.

The present plan is to take equipment costs out of the $200 million Congress allowed the President to transfer from military funds for Korean rehabilitation.

Bankers in Washington

President Dwight G. Eisenhower's administration isn't just a team of businessmen—it's also a team of bankers. This was reported by the American Bankers Association, which will hold its annual convention in Washington in September, for the first time since the depression year of 1934.

As proof of its statement, ABA lists these bank directors holding high office in the Republican administration:

Secretary of Navy Robert B. Anderson of Dallas, Tex.

Deputy Secretary of Treasury W. Randolph Burgess of New York.

Administrative Assistant to the President Robert Cutler of Boston.

Director of the Budget Joseph M. Dodge of Detroit.

Indian Commissioner Glenn L. Emmons of Gallup, N. Mex.

Undersecretary of Treasury Marion B. Folsom of New York.

Special Counsel to the President Thomas E. Stephens, New York.

Civil Servise Commission Chairman Philip Young of New York.

They Like It Hot

Washingtonian's are learning not to mop their brows and not to do any complaining about the capital's famous summer weather in front of Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Ezra Taft Benson.

This cabinet couple think the Washington climate is so mild they're actually bragging about it to their friends back home in Salt Lake City. Mrs. Benson simply reminds Washingtonian summer sufferers that Utah is rated as second hottest state in the Union this year.

Washington? It's wonderful.

New Jap Fleet

Japanese radio broadcasts have revealed that out of 500 who have applied for commissions in the new Japanese Coastal Safety Corps—which corresponds to the U. S. Coast Guard—some 300 are former Japanese Navy officers and a third of this number held high rank.

Among the applicants is Capt. Tsurayuki Hashimoto, former commander of the Jap submarine I-GO 58, which the Japanese say sank a U. S. cruiser carrying an A-bomb. Another is the former Commander Tadashi Nakajima, founder of the Kamikaze corps of suicide pilots. Still another was Commander Takeji Ueno, an Imperial Headquarters staff officer.

Since the Japanese Constitution prohibits the country from having a Navy, this Coastal Defense Corps is being built up as a new, first line sea frontier defense force for the islands.

Truman Was Told in 1945 of Soviet Spy Ring Within Administration

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 24—The most sensational report by a committee of Congress in a century or more of American history has just been unanimously approved and issued to the public by the Internal security Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate. For it shows the outline, design, and active participants in a deliberate conspiracy against the United States Government unparalleled since the treason of Aaron Burr.

The report tells that President Truman and other high officials were warned as early as November 1945 by a secret memorandum from the FBI that a Soviet spy ring existed within the Roosevelt and Truman administrations. Names were given and the testimony of confessed Communists was furnished by the FBI. Nevertheless, in 1948 Mr. Truman was calling an attempted exposure of the whole thing a "red herring" intended, he said, by the Republicans to divert attention from legislative delays. The Democratic administration, moreover, up to to the very end of its term in January 1953 was denouncing the congressional investigations which had been bringing to light the facts about the Communist conspiracy.

Those Democratic members of Congress and campaign speakers, including Governor Stevenson, who have been proclaiming far and wide that the job of ferreting out Communists from government had better be left solely to the FBI will find by reading the new report that this isn't enough, especially if what the FBI turns up is consistently ignored. For the FBI itself cannot prosecute cases or even make public the damaging facts it has collected or ask for the indictment by a grand jury of a single suspect unless the President or the attorney general directs that such a specific step be taken.

All the Democratic and Republican members of the Senate's Internal Security Committee have signed the 26,000-word report, which is the result of nearly three years of investigative work and hearings. Senator Willis Smith, Democrat, of North Carolina and a former president of the American Bar Association, would unquestionably have signed the report but for his death a few weeks ago. He was known to have been shocked by the facts revealed in the large number of sessions of the committee in which he participated. His comments at the time were always in accord with those of the other members of the committee.

Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin has never been a member of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee and has had no part in its proceedings or in the making of its report. But the findings certainly vindicate many of the broad charges he has made, notably that the FBI's information was disregarded by the executive branch of the government under the last two administrations and that hence Congressional investigations became essential.

The new report shows that only two of the Soviet spy rings inside the American government have thus far been exposed and that two more rings—now known to have existed—have not yet been uncovered largely because of lack of information from and cooperation by key witnesses—American citizens—who hide behind the fifth amendment and who are being encouraged to continue to do so by "left wing" organizations and other defenders of the fifth amendment technique.

The committee report says:

"Despite the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other security agencies had reported extensive information about this Communist penetration, little was done by the executive branch to interrupt the Soviet operatives in their ascent in government until Congressional committees brought forth to public light the facts of the conspiracy....

"The Soviet international organization has carried on a successful and important penetration of the United States government and this penetration has not been fully exposed.

"This penetration has extended from the lower ranks to the top-level policy and operating positions in our government....

"In general, the Communists who infiltrated our government worked behind the scenes—guiding research and preparing memoranda on which basic American policies were set, writing speeches for cabinet officers, influencing Congressional investigations, drafting laws, manipulating administrative reorganizations—always serving the interest of their Soviet superiors.

"Thousands of diplomatic, political, military, scientific and economic secrets of the United States have been stolen by Soviet agents in our government and other persons closely connected with the Communists....

"Powerful groups and individuals within the executive branch were at work obstructing and weakening the effort to eliminate Soviet agents from positions in government."

The committee says that, according to evidence in its records, those involved "in the secret Communist underground included an executive assistant to the president of the United States, an assistant secretary of the treasury, a United States treasury attache in China, the secretary of the International Monetary Fund, the head of the Latin-American division of the office of strategic services, a member of the National Labor Relations Board, secretary of the National Labor Relations Board, chief counsel of the Senate subcommittee on civil liberties," and several others in wartime projects and boards.

The committee in its report touches on various incidents in the history of the last 20 years when strikes have been fomented at critical times, employers have been harassed by Labor Relations Board decisions in key industries, key unions have been influenced toward the Communist line, foreign policy has been shaped toward Soviet desires, and even Congressional committees on Capitol Hill have been infiltrated by Communist agents.

The Senate subcommittee makes a very important recommendation—that existing laws which permit Communists to escape indictment be revised so that the statute of limitations be lengthened, particularly for false swearing. For at present, unless the evidence of lying is obtained and prosecution begun within three years, there can be no punishment meted out. This is one reason why public condemnation, at least, through exposures by Congressional committees, is about the only way now to ostracize the men and women who were willing to betray their move about freely in various walks of life unknown to the public and unpunished for their misdeeds.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The Marshall girls, of Marshall, Tex., have lost another round in their fight for a court decision to outlaw the baby-sitter's Social Security tax and to me it begins to look as thought our federal courts will sustain all phases of the deal on political grounds regardless of the constitution. I admit prejudice in my essays on this, on the withholding phase of the income tax and the similar bilking of self-employed persons. But mine is a noble bigotry in favor of the U. S. Constitution and the constitutions of many of the several states.

The Court of Appeals of the Fifth Circuit, in New Orleans, turned down the Marshall girls in their appeal from the brusque dismissal of their original case by District Judge William H. Atwell, of Dallas. Now the Supreme Court probably will refuse to hear any further appeal. And, by the time the issue does reach the top in some other case, if it ever does, the potential shock to the national treasury and the hardship on the few old people who really have settled down to life on the old-age dole will over-awe the team and they will ratify the crime out of cowardice.

It took manhood in the court to demolish the NRA in the grotesque sick-chicken case, but that decision was all that saved this country from utter, total fascism at that time, as anyone who remembers that monstrous thing will tell you. This was a steal from Mussolini, with a parasitic bureaucracy centered in Washington and cells of infection imbedded in our tissue all over the country. It was going to regulate business, from the mines and forests through the factories to the counters of the five-and-dime, limiting prices and profits and even the zones of business, and of course, in consequence, the wages and hours of the workers.

Hugh S. Johnson, an obscure temporary brigadier of World War 1, a quaint frontiersman with a nose like J. P. Morgan's and a line of repartee and imagery that mingled the sweet New England poets with the cavalry sojers of the Indian wars, somehow turned up in Washington to "administer" this awesome work of the devil. Many of our business people and our editors went crazy and whooped the dam thing up with fanatical fervor and Hugh began tossing off blurts of quaintness that were a little too lurid to be casual, about cracking down on chiselers and his indifference to the dead-cats which he expected to be thrown at him.

To the day he died, Hugh stuck to the proposition that he was stuck with when he accepted the job. But I doubt that he felt anything but relief when the Supreme Court took him and us off the hook. He had a great streak of ham in him, but he was much more patriotic than the New Dealers whom he permitted to exploit the novelty of his personality. Being also too intelligent to doubt the danger to the constitution and our form of government which Congress had written into this idiots' delight, Hugh could not have mourned in his heart the de-

Music and Box Tops

By FRANK TRIPP

Things had been a mite quiet in the box top department, as they usually get in summer when folks don't lean much to letter writing. A "box top" is a solicited fan letter, one that you ask for, like the soap opera impresarios do.

Only, if you're writing a column, you don't come right out and offer a diamond bracelet for two box tops and a dime. You get 'em for free when you need them.

It's done by stirring up the animals, so to speak. Sometimes you do it on purpose, sometimes unwittingly. This time it was unintentional, for I like peaceful summers.

Lazy August was entering smoothly when I had to go and take a poke at pompous pianists who bewilder low-brow listeners with high-brow music. That did it.

Almost all of the "box tops" contained neither dimes nor plaudits. One irate artiste addressed me, "U. R. Schmaltz," and others made reference to that gentleman of moronic musical mentality. I gather that I'm not highly regarded as a music critic.

There's no more to be said on my part, not until I need more box tops to impress my syndicate. It's always sure-fire—stepping on tender toes.

THERE ARE two or three ways to get big mail. Buy some phony gold mine stock and get on the sucker list; or write a letter to the editor criticizing labor unions, religion or art; just step on somebody's pet corn.

A common gripe aimed at the press is that it never misses a sensation but overlooks a dozen cozy ice cream socials a day.

The press has a gripe too. It's that it rarely hears from its customers unless they want something "put in" or "kept out" or to broil the editor because they don't agree with him.

WELL NOW, that's fine. Don't stop it. If a publisher should suddenly receive a flood of letters agreeing with everything his paper says, chances are he'd fire the whole staff. He'd think it was a cooked up box top shower.

And he'd be right. Because it's a common and bad habit with all of us to withhold words of praise, but seldom miss a chance to complain.

My field day wasn't a total loss however. Marnie Perry, who summers next door, pleases us with the kind of music we love and can understand, though she also is master of the kind we can't.

Here's her comeback to my attack on pianists who bore their audiences with classics that go over their heads:

"AFTER READING in your column, your pronunciamentos solemn, I'm facing, to its full extent, my musical predicament.

"No more can I play ditties classical for listeners whose tastes are jazzical; no longer can I toy with Liszt, while the audience in boredom sits—thirstin' for Gershwin.

"So, although I'd just as lief play Serg Prokofiev, or start off with Rachmaninov, I'll have to sacrifice Stravinsky, and turn to jive they play for Minsky.

"Though there's melody that balms in a lullaby by Brahms, I dare not risk the social rod by playing him or Chaminade.

"Thus I give up my practice scales, for fear of all the anguished wails of those whose tastes hew to the line of Herbert, Kern and Hammerstein.

"AT LAST I'm sensing with a shock I must not give them Johann Bach, and though Ed Grieg may be my pet, I must not give him to them yet.

"To you I yield, dear Mister Schmaltz, your lovin' 'Merry Widow Waltz'; please don't rave on ad infinitum; if you want more, I'm game—come get 'em.

"I really liked your column, and it was true."

Navy Man Is Killed

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—The body of a navy man, home on a 10-day leave, was found in a car parked on a lonely stretch of Rockaway Beach, his head crushed apparently by a blunt weapon. Police identified him as Edward S. Bates, 22, of Amityville, a navy pipe fitter third class, stationed at Norfolk, Va. The body was slumped across the front seat of a cream-colored 1947 convertible. He wore only bathing trunks and socks. Police questioned four youths who had been with Bates during the evening and said they last saw him at 2 a. m. (EST) Sunday morning. The body was found six hours later.

Safe Is Stolen

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—A small 300-pound safe containing about $2,000 was stolen yesterday from a kosher cafeteria at 942 Southern Boulevard, near East 183rd street, the Bronx, police reported. The cafeteria's back door, which faces a parking lot had been forced. Detectives said the thieves apparently drove into the lot, used their car or light truck to screen them, broke the door open, put the safe in the car, and drove away. The cafeteria is owned by Nathan Ehrlich, 1712 Watson avenue, the Bronx. He discovered the theft when he opened the place in the morning.

Bartender Is Held

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Alfred Larsen, 34, unemployed bartender, who allegedly admitted molesting a dozen girls ranging in age from 4 to 15 in or near the Parkchester area in the Bronx in the past two months, was freed in $3,000 bail for a hearing Aug. 28 when arraigned on two morals charges yesterday before Magistrate Joseph A. Martibis in Bronx Magistrate's Court. Larsen, who lives at 11 Metropolitan Oval, in the Parkchester development, was arrested Saturday night after 15 detectives from the Williamsbridge road station had tracked him down from descriptions given by his alleged victims.

As Pegler Sees It

liverance of his country from peril though he had to pull a face for the newsreels to signalize the end of an ignoble experiment.

We got delivered from the plot, to be sure, but few of the voters of today were old enough to know what was up at the time and most of those who had enough age had too little sense to understand, and that goes for Congress, too. Meanwhile, much of that fascism has been imposed on us through the unions as political proteges of the old New Deal. They levy taxes either undisguised or illdisguised, not only on their subjects by their own irresponsible, wanton decrees but on business, too, and by open commands in many cases and mocking schemes in many others, allot zones of business to retail stores and factories.

If a man wants to open a drug store in Seattle in competition with an established store which enjoys good standing and, in effect, an NRA license from the teamsters, he had better not try. He may discover that the wholesale purveyors of chow-mein, percolators, beach balls and lawn-sprinklers won't cross his threshold. If he changes his mind and opens a pantorium or school store with a line of comics, westerns, greeting cards and candy, the union may let him in and welcome.

The Textile Workers' Union pursues firms into the deep south which have worn out their welcome in New England to make them ship down their old employes, their dependents and their household tackle and the Labor Relations Board will rule "Aye" to that. This denies jobs to the local talent in Dixie by federal decree, but do you want to make anything of it?

For years, unions have required the employers in garments, plucked chickens and other stuff to buy and affix tags or labels amounting to a royalty for the union and a sales tax to the ultimate consumers with no pretense at all that this is in the public interest nor any accounting to any public authority. These are just a few indicative details of the encroachment of the New Deal through its political subsidiaries on the citizenship we enjoyed when we were young and free. The approach has been so subtle that few of us know anything about it.

So we stood off the NRA, but many of the elements of it have been slipped over by stealth and now we find President Eisenhower, a stranger in these parts, fellow-shipping with them that done it and draping his arm around the neck of a Lovestone Communist called Irving Brown and yipping three rousing cheers for his great work in persuading the French toilers not to strike. The trouble is the more he persuades them at our expense, provided through the Central Intelligence Agency, the more of them do strike and the less they do to fortify France against the peace-loving democracy of Russia.

The Social Security taxes in both phases, boss-employed and self-employed, and the Withholding Tax are related problems of like portent. The amount of money drained off the gross national payroll by the S.S. taxes is colossal, but the real menace lies in the proposition that the people have to buy pensions at erratic, unequal and changeable rates, whether they want it or don't, and, in millions of cases, have to perform actual hard work, without pay for their time or effort.

The whole business could be knocked down by a massive passive resistance, but the injured parties are unorganized and afraid of the government. The federal courts may include a few honest men with the moral courage to stand by the Marshall girls, Mary Cain, of Summit, Miss., and a few other worried little rebels, but the majority and certainly the Supreme Court will rule against the old freedom.

Practical Measures Pledged

Vienna, Aug. 24 (AP)—Romania's Communist government, observing the ninth anniversary of the satellite country's "liberation" by the Red army, has pledged to take "practical measures to improve shortcomings which have arisen." Premier Gheorghe Gheorghiu Dej did not elaborate on the shortcomings when he spoke over a nationwide radio network yesterday. He said, however, the government would build new homes, increase pensions and reduce prices.

Things had been a mite quiet in the box top department, as they usually get in summer when folks don't lean much to letter writing. A "box top" is a solicited fan letter, one that you ask for, like the soap opera impresarios do.

Only, if you're writing a column, you don't come right out and offer a diamond bracelet for two box tops and a dime. You get 'em for free when you need them.

It's done by stirring up the animals, so to speak. Sometimes you do it on purpose, sometimes unwittingly. This time it was unintentional, for I like peaceful summers.

Lazy August was entering smoothly when I had to go and take a poke at pompous pianists who bewilder low-brow listeners with high-brow music. That did it.

Almost all of the "box tops" contained neither dimes nor plaudits. One irate artiste addressed me, "U. R. Schmaltz," and others made reference to that gentleman of moronic musical mentality. I gather that I'm not highly regarded as a music critic.

There's no more to be said on my part, not until I need more box tops to impress my syndicate. It's always sure-fire—stepping on tender toes.

THERE ARE two or three ways to get big mail. Buy some phony gold mine stock and get on the sucker list; or write a letter to the editor criticizing labor unions, religion or art; just step on somebody's pet corn.

A common gripe aimed at the press is that it never misses a sensation but overlooks a dozen cozy ice cream socials a day.

The press has a gripe too. It's that it rarely hears from its customers unless they want something "put in" or "kept out" or to broil the editor because they don't agree with him.

WELL NOW, that's fine. Don't stop it. If a publisher should suddenly receive a flood of letters agreeing with everything his paper says, chances are he'd fire the whole staff. He'd think it was a cooked up box top shower.

And he'd be right. Because it's a common and bad habit with all of us to withhold words of praise, but seldom miss a chance to complain.

My field day wasn't a total loss however. Marnie Perry, who summers next door, pleases us with the kind of music we love and can understand, though she also is master of the kind we can't.

Here's her comeback to my attack on pianists who bore their audiences with classics that go over their heads:

"AFTER READING in your column, your pronunciamentos solemn, I'm facing, to its full extent, my musical predicament.

"No more can I play ditties classical for listeners whose tastes are jazzical; no longer can I toy with Liszt, while the audience in boredom sits—thirstin' for Gershwin.

"So, although I'd just as lief play Serg Prokofiev, or start off with Rachmaninov, I'll have to sacrifice Stravinsky, and turn to jive they play for Minsky.

"Though there's melody that balms in a lullaby by Brahms, I dare not risk the social rod by playing him or Chaminade.

"Thus I give up my practice scales, for fear of all the anguished wails of those whose tastes hew to the line of Herbert, Kern and Hammerstein.

"AT LAST I'm sensing with a shock I must not give them Johann Bach, and though Ed Grieg may be my pet, I must not give him to them yet.

"To you I yield, dear Mister Schmaltz, your lovin' 'Merry Widow Waltz'; please don't rave on ad infinitum; if you want more, I'm game—come get 'em.

"I really liked your column, and it was true."

Bartender Is Held

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Alfred Larsen, 34, unemployed bartender, who allegedly admitted molesting a dozen girls ranging in age from 4 to 15 in or near the Parkchester area in the Bronx in the past two months, was freed in $3,000 bail for a hearing Aug. 28 when arraigned on two morals charges yesterday before Magistrate Joseph A. Martibis in Bronx Magistrate's Court. Larsen, who lives at 11 Metropolitan Oval, in the Parkchester development, was arrested Saturday night after 15 detectives from the Williamsbridge road station had tracked him down from descriptions given by his alleged victims.

Navy Man Is Killed

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—The body of a navy man, home on a 10-day leave, was found in a car parked on a lonely stretch of Rockaway Beach, his head crushed apparently by a blunt weapon. Police identified him as Edward S. Bates, 22, of Amityville, a navy pipe fitter third class, stationed at Norfolk, Va. The body was slumped across the front seat of a cream-colored 1947 convertible. He wore only bathing trunks and socks. Police questioned four youths who had been with Bates during the evening and said they last saw him at 2 a. m. (EST) Sunday morning. The body was found six hours later.

Safe Is Stolen

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—A small 300-pound safe containing about $2,000 was stolen yesterday from a kosher cafeteria at 942 Southern Boulevard, near East 183rd street, the Bronx, police reported. The cafeteria's back door, which faces a parking lot had been forced. Detectives said the thieves apparently drove into the lot, used their car or light truck to screen them, broke the door open, put the safe in the car, and drove away. The cafeteria is owned by Nathan Ehrlich, 1712 Watson avenue, the Bronx. He discovered the theft when he opened the place in the morning.

POWs Board Transport

Inchon, Korea, Aug. 24 (AP)—Three hundred seventeen American prisoners of war freed by the Communists began boarding the transport Gen. John Pope here today. Approximately 100 more are slated to board the ship tomorrow, when the Pope is scheduled to leave for the United States. Also aboard will be Korean veterans going home on rotation.

Saugerties Vet Returns

Cpl. John J. Miller of 13 Prospect street, Saugerties, was one of 1,659 servicemen who arrived Saturday aboard the Transport Gen. Simon B. Buckner in Seattle, The Associated Press reported today. Also aboard was Cpl. William R. Gay of Old Post road, Rhinebeck.

As Pegler Sees It

liverance of his country from peril though he had to pull a face for the newsreels to signalize the end of an ignoble experiment.

We got delivered from the plot, to be sure, but few of the voters of today were old enough to know what was up at the time and most of those who had enough age had too little sense to understand, and that goes for Congress, too. Meanwhile, much of that fascism has been imposed on us through the unions as political proteges of the old New Deal. They levy taxes either undisguised or illdisguised, not only on their subjects by their own irresponsible, wanton decrees but on business, too, and by open commands in many cases and mocking schemes in many others, allot zones of business to retail stores and factories.

If a man wants to open a drug store in Seattle in competition with an established store which enjoys good standing and, in effect, an NRA license from the teamsters, he had better not try. He may discover that the wholesale purveyors of chow-mein, percolators, beach balls and lawn-sprinklers won't cross his threshold. If he changes his mind and opens a pantorium or school store with a line of comics, westerns, greeting cards and candy, the union may let him in and welcome.

The Textile Workers' Union pursues firms into the deep south which have worn out their welcome in New England to make them ship down their old employes, their dependents and their household tackle and the Labor Relations Board will rule "Aye" to that. This denies jobs to the local talent in Dixie by federal decree, but do you want to make anything of it?

For years, unions have required the employers in garments, plucked chickens and other stuff to buy and affix tags or labels amounting to a royalty for the union and a sales tax to the ultimate consumers with no pretense at all that this is in the public interest nor any accounting to any public authority. These are just a few indicative details of the encroachment of the New Deal through its political subsidiaries on the citizenship we enjoyed when we were young and free. The approach has been so subtle that few of us know anything about it.

So we stood off the NRA, but many of the elements of it have been slipped over by stealth and now we find President Eisenhower, a stranger in these parts, fellow-shipping with them that done it and draping his arm around the neck of a Lovestone Communist called Irving Brown and yipping three rousing cheers for his great work in persuading the French toilers not to strike. The trouble is the more he persuades them at our expense, provided through the Central Intelligence Agency, the more of them do strike and the less they do to fortify France against the peace-loving democracy of Russia.

The Social Security taxes in both phases, boss-employed and self-employed, and the Withholding Tax are related problems of like portent. The amount of money drained off the gross national payroll by the S.S. taxes is colossal, but the real menace lies in the proposition that the people have to buy pensions at erratic, unequal and changeable rates, whether they want it or don't, and, in millions of cases, have to perform actual hard work, without pay for their time or effort.

The whole business could be knocked down by a massive passive resistance, but the injured parties are unorganized and afraid of the government. The federal courts may include a few honest men with the moral courage to stand by the Marshall girls, Mary Cain, of Summit, Miss., and a few other worried little rebels, but the majority and certainly the Supreme Court will rule against the old freedom.

Practical Measures Pledged

Vienna, Aug. 24 (AP)—Romania's Communist government, observing the ninth anniversary of the satellite country's "liberation" by the Red army, has pledged to take "practical measures to improve shortcomings which have arisen." Premier Gheorghe Gheorghiu Dej did not elaborate on the shortcomings when he spoke over a nationwide radio network yesterday. He said, however, the government would build new homes, increase pensions and reduce prices.

In an attempt to improve the TV-watching habits of her pupils, a teacher had asked her first graders the day before to watch only shows with a moral, then to come in and tell their classmates what they saw.

Youngster—I saw Gene Autry last night. He was riding his horse down the road when ten guys jumped him. He pulled out his gun and shot six of them and when he ran out of bullets he beat up the other four.

Teacher — That was certainly exciting. But I don't see the moral.

Youngster (proudly) — The moral is, that you shouldn't mess with Gene Autry.

City Cutie—Oh, (as she pointed to one of the farm animals) what a funny looking cow. It hasn't any horns. Why wouldn't a cow have horns?

Farmer — Wal, miss, there's plenty of reasons. Some cows don't get their horns till pretty late. Others get de-horned. And still other breeds ain't supposed to have horns. But the reason this cow doesn't have horns is because it's a horse.

Investor Forum

Harry C. France

Millions of investors know little of the New York Stock Exchange. Yet since it is the greatest security market in the world, they should understand its operations.

In the language of the farm, the ranch, the oil field, the mine and the forest, it is the gathering place where buyers and sellers of bonds and stocks meet to do business. This Exchange is a Great Atlantic and Pacific; a Montgomery Ward; a J. C. Penney; a Sears-Roebuck and a Woolworth rolled into one.

I mention these five names because across the country, armies of purchasers yearly visit these stores to do their shopping. And what these vast emporiums do for every type of person in America, the New York Stock Exchange can do for every investor. It is as easy to buy or sell shares or bonds through the Exchange as it is to purchase a ham, a washing machine, a yard of cloth or a box of stationery from one of these stores.

The Exchange is a great retail and wholesale market. A Nebraska investor wants to buy five shares of General Motors. A Montana schoolboy is in the market for five shares of Standard Oil of California. An Oklahoma housewife wants 10 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph.

And the executors of a millionaire's estate have 10,000 Du Point; 5,000 General Motors; 5,000 Standard Oil of New Jersey to sell.

They all turn to the same place: the New York Stock Exchange. There is no important city in the economic world where its trading facilities are not available. I turn to the offices of a single member firm. It has offices in:

Bartlesville, Okla.
Beverly Hills, Calif.
Boston, Mass.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chicago, Ill.
Colorado Springs, Colo.
Columbia, S. C.

And here I skip 20 cities and end with:

Spartanburg, S. C.
Stockton, Calif.
Tulsa, Okla.
Wichita, Kan.
Winston-Salem, N. C.

Investors with $1,000 or so can save a lot of money by buying and selling securities through firms that are members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Most commercial banks in the United States frequently use the facilities of the Exchange in carrying on business for customers.

Commission rates are relatively small. Furthermore they are uniform. An investor pays the same commission on shares bought or sold in Portland, Maine, and Portland, Oregon; in Seattle or Miami; in Dallas or in Duluth.

The common and preferred stocks of 90 per cent of America's leading corporations — the very vehicles of investment that investors should buy—are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and are actively handled there every trading day.

Investors living in remote sections of the United States and desiring to know in what city these facilities are available, may address a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper to get this information.

Guild Directors Elect Officers

Woodstock, Aug. 22—The annual meeting of the Guild Shop Cooperative, Inc., was held Thursday, at 4:30 p. m. at the Guild. Twenty consignors were present. In the absence of the president, Anita Smith, vice-president, presided, and Miss Florence Hubbard was appointed temporary secretary. Miss Smith reported on the incorporation of the Guild Shop Cooperative and Miss Mari Bollman, chairman of the nominating committee presented the following slate for the board of directors: Anita Stallforth, Rasalind d'Albis, Zella Pike, one-year term; Anita Smith, Margaret Gruver, Martha Everett, two-year term; Florence Hubbard, Margaret Wetterau, Katherine Wangler, three-year term.

Since there were no nominations from the floor the secretary was directed to cast one ballot and the nominees were unanimously elected. Also Russell Cook and Albert Wangler were unanimously reelected as members of the auditing committee.

The directors met immediately following the consignors meeting and elected as president Miss Florence Hubbard. The other officers who continue in office are: Anita Smith, vice-president; Rosalind d'Albis, secretary; Anita Stallforth, treasurer; Katherine Wangler, shop executive.

Craft Directors Visit Here

Dr. Richard Murbach, chief of the Bureau of Occupational Extension of the State Education Department recently visited Woodstock, bringing Edgar H. Strong, newly appointed as associate in vocational arts and crafts education. The aim of the visit was to acquaint Strong with Guild craft studios and equipment and to visit some of the craft classes. Mrs. Murbach also accompanied her husband. After visiting classes and conferring with Mrs. Wangler and Miss Hubbard on the Vocational Craft Project the meeting adjourned to the home of Mrs. Blanche Rosett, chairman of the Guild's Educational Committee, where further discussion took place on possible future developments of the Vocational Craft Project.

Kickoff Dinner For Scouts Set Wednesday Night

Woodstock, Aug. 22—Charles Mullen, of West Shokan, Western District Finance chairman of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced today that plans are rapidly nearing completion for the district's participation in the annual finance campaign. He annouced that local campaign workers will contact all homes and business places in this area in the solicitation of funds which will materially assist the Council to carry out its intensified youth program throughout Ulster and Greene counties during the coming year. The Western District includes the communities of Woodstock, Bearsville, Lake Hill, West Hurley, Boiceville, Phoenicia, Mt. Tremper, Chichester, Samsonville, Olive Bridge, Allaben, Shandaken, Big Indian, Pine Hill, Shokan, West Shokan, and Ashokan.

The Rev. Harvey I. Todd, who will direct the campaign throughout the Woodstock area, has announced that there will be a kickoff dinner for campaign workers Wednesday at the Dutch Reformed Church basement at 6:30 p. m.

Budget Is $20,000

In his announcement, Chairman Mullen said that the Council budget for 1953 has been set at $20,000, of which the Western District has been asked to raise $1,350. Recent figures released by the Council office indicate that Scouting throughout the Council is at an all-time high, with a total boy-membership of more than 1990 distributed over 57 troops, 20 Cub Packs, and four Explorer Units. Of these totals, the Western District is represented by 151 boys in five troops and two Cub Packs. There are, in addition, 74 Western District volunteer Scouters who are actively engaged in the Scouting organization in various capacities. From the upward trends in all phases of Scouting it is the Council's expectation that the total boy-membership will exceed 2,000 by the end of the year, with proportionate increases in all other totals.

Will Expand Program

Money raised during this campaign will make it possible for the Council to meet this expanded growth with adequate programming, trainer adult leadership, expanded and improved facilities at Camp Trimount, maintenance of the Council business office, trained professional Scouting advisors, and all other expenses which are necessary to the successful operation of a Council. The campaign is scheduled to be completed throughout the Council by Sept. 1.

Both Finance Chairman Mullen and Clifford Carnright, district chairman, unite in an appeal for the generous support of local citizens for this worthy cause, and have expressed their conviction that the importance of Scouting to every community and to the nation merits the whole-hearted support of every citizen. They feel confident that through the cooperation of the Western District general public the district goal will be achieved.

Collins Opens One-Man Show at Town House

Woodstock, Aug. 22—Pat Collins' spacial world of roof-top fantasy and pixie humor is well defined in his current one-man show which opened Friday afternoon at the Town House with a reception. Except for the two fine portraits included in the exhibition which have a Holbein quality in the perfection of their modeling, Collins is meticulously consistent in the world bounded by controlled emotion which he depicts.

All of Collins canvases are striking for their pure primary color, their distinct linear patterns and interesting shapes and forms. His humor sparkles in the small details and in the elusive titles he has given his paintings, among them, Is He Peculiar, She Wants Breakfast in Bed, What No Garlic, The Other Fellow Is Right and Too Many Doors.

The exhibition will continue through Sept. 7.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Avoid Overcall; Win Bridge Game

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Most bridge players would bid two clubs on the South hand after East opens the bidding. Experts avoid such overcalls because game is very unlikely unless partner has an equally good hand. If that happens to be the case, the opening bidder's partner will have a worthless hand and will pass; whereupon it will be easy and safe to step into the auction.

In the average game nothing very serious happens when the overcall of two clubs is made. The next player seldom doubles (even with a hand that is clearly worth a double), and the overcaller gets away with his dangerous bid.

This doesn't mean that he gains anything; it merely means that he escapes punishment. This is like walking across a busy street with your eyes closed—the best you can hope for is to stay out of trouble.

When today's hand was played recently, South was unlucky because West knew enough to double the unsound overcall of two clubs. South awaited the outcome quite cheerfully at first, but he soon lost his happy smile.

West opened the nine of spades, dummy covered with the ten, and East won a finesse with the jack. East returned the jack of hearts, and South put up the king. West took the ace and queen of hearts and led his remaining spade, whereupon East won a second finesse with the queen of spades.

East was in no hurry to lead a third round of spades. Instead he cashed the ten of hearts and then switched to the king of diamonds. When that held, East next cashed the queen of diamonds. By this time it was clear that South's remaining cards were trumps, so East switched back to spades.

South didn't dare ruff high, for then West would surely win two trump tricks. Hence declarer ruffed with the eight of clubs, and West then led his last heart, and East carefully ruffed with the ten of clubs. South had to overruff and then give West a second trump trick anyway.

South managed to win only four tricks, and thus sustained a penalty of 1100 points. The funniest part of the hand was that South thought he was just unlucky and is still making the same kind of overcall.

ADIRONDACK TRAILWAYS

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

From time to time I have asked for old city directories and now have an assortment from 1896 to 1950 but not for each year. Just received one dated 1915-16 from the Home Seekers' Savings and Loan staff. From time to time I am asked to look up firms or names which were listed in the Kingston book. I see in the 1915 Directory, The Stuyvesant, then owned by James S. Winne, was Kingston's New Modern Hotel as it was completed only in 1911.

Two and one-half per cent is a big item with savings banks accounts. In 1915 the Rondout Savings Bank took a full page to give various information about its establishment and in small print plainly stated "Interest at the rate of four per cent per annum was declared for six months ending with June 30, 1915. Interest credited semi-annually, January and July. Deposits commence to draw interest from the first of each month." In those days I remember Dayton Murray at the counter. He was the father of Cleon Murray, the district attorney. Of course; anyone who wisely deposited money regularly way back there drew a good interest of 4 per cent.

Some of our finest buildings were put up around that time. The Campbell and Dempsey Construction Co., of 170 Pine street was a team of the finest builders in town. There was G. & L. Halverson of 123 South Manor avenue and Louis Halverson at 109 South Manor avenue. They used the finest brick and other materials, much of it made or brought out of the Ulster county ground like Rosendale cement.

I wonder how many folks remember The Wiltwyck Inn at 48 Main street. It was known to accommodate private parties and also large receptions like weddings. It was and still is an artistically constructed building right across from the Old Dutch Church. I haven't a record of the builder of this building which I always admired and knew quite well when Ralph Cohen had his antique shop there.

I see a listing of Asa Budington, "electrician, house and bell wiring and motor work. N. Y. Telephone Co." 35 Hoffman street. I think I knew his wife well, Kitty Budington, as we belonged to the same Eastern Star Chapter together. I wonder if this advertisement means that he did private work as well as work for the New York Telephone Co. Who remembers Silas Kimbark, the "Practical Horseshoer" as he called himself at his establishment at 77 Crown street. Those were the days of horses for Marshall Roosa had his livery and boarding stables at 122-124 North Front street and had a good advertisement in the 1915 director. James Millard and Son were manufacturers of brick machinery, iron and brass castings at 106-110 Prince street. But they also had the agency for Ford motor cars, had automobile supplies and did auto repair work. They also ran the Kingston Garage. Kingston had a Conservatory of Music at the Crosby building, corner John and Wall street. It was run by Mr. Muller, of Muller's Orchestra of the Colonial City Band. He was leader of the Kingston Point Band on many Sundays, as I remember.

Navy Veteran Rests

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—A navy veteran, who spent 13 hours and 17 minutes threatening to jump from a 14th floor hospital ledge, slept through most of yesterday after he was coaxed back to safety. The Brooklyn Veterans Administration Hospital reported yesterday that Sidney Herman, 23, of Queens, was resting well and responding to treatment. Herman, in the hospital for treatment of a stomach ulcer and anxiety neuroses, climbed out on the ledge at noon (EST) Saturday. He let firemen lead him back into the building after Dr. Harvey Kay, hospital psychiatrist, told him, "I can help you and you know it." Earlier he had eluded three attempts to take him off the ledge and ignored pleas by clergymen, doctors and his brother. Thousands watched the tense drama.

Investor Forum

Harry C. France

Millions of investors know little of the New York Stock Exchange. Yet since it is the greatest security market in the world, they should understand its operations.

In the language of the farm, the ranch, the oil field, the mine and the forest, it is the gathering place where buyers and sellers of bonds and stocks meet to do business. This Exchange is a Great Atlantic and Pacific; a Montgomery Ward; a J. C. Penney; a Sears-Roebuck and a Woolworth rolled into one.

I mention these five names because across the country, armies of purchasers yearly visit these stores to do their shopping. And what these vast emporiums do for every type of person in America, the New York Stock Exchange can do for every investor. It is as easy to buy or sell shares or bonds through the Exchange as it is to purchase a ham, a washing machine, a yard of cloth or a box of stationery from one of these stores.

The Exchange is a great retail and wholesale market. A Nebraska investor wants to buy five shares of General Motors. A Montana schoolboy is in the market for five shares of Standard Oil of California. An Oklahoma housewife wants 10 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph.

And the executors of a millionaire's estate have 10,000 Du Point; 5,000 General Motors; 5,000 Standard Oil of New Jersey to sell.

They all turn to the same place: the New York Stock Exchange. There is no important city in the economic world where its trading facilities are not available. I turn to the offices of a single member firm. It has offices in:

Bartlesville, Okla.
Beverly Hills, Calif.
Boston, Mass.
Charleston, W. Va.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chicago, Ill.
Colorado Springs, Colo.
Columbia, S. C.

And here I skip 20 cities and end with:

Spartanburg, S. C.
Stockton, Calif.
Tulsa, Okla.
Wichita, Kan.
Winston-Salem, N. C.

Investors with $1,000 or so can save a lot of money by buying and selling securities through firms that are members of the New York Stock Exchange.

Most commercial banks in the United States frequently use the facilities of the Exchange in carrying on business for customers.

Commission rates are relatively small. Furthermore they are uniform. An investor pays the same commission on shares bought or sold in Portland, Maine, and Portland, Oregon; in Seattle or Miami; in Dallas or in Duluth.

The common and preferred stocks of 90 per cent of America's leading corporations — the very vehicles of investment that investors should buy—are listed on the New York Stock Exchange and are actively handled there every trading day.

Investors living in remote sections of the United States and desiring to know in what city these facilities are available, may address a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper to get this information.

CONSTIPATED?

This note from John J. McKeever of Dalton, Mass., will interest you!

"I'd often get constipated when my everyday schedule was upset—such as by a long car ride.

"But I never did get the gentle, speedy relief I wanted until the day Sal Hepatica was recommended to me. Next time I woke up with that logy feeling and knew my day might be ruined by constipation, I took Sal Hepatica before breakfast. Within about an hour, I was back on my feet! Sal Hepatica really does the trick!"

Yes, take sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast and feel fine again . . . usually within an hour. Or, take it in the evening one half hour before supper and feel fine again by bedtime! Sweetens sour stomach, too! So keep Sal Hepatica handy in your medicine chest.

Guild Directors Elect Officers

Woodstock, Aug. 22—The annual meeting of the Guild Shop Cooperative, Inc., was held Thursday, at 4:30 p. m. at the Guild. Twenty consignors were present. In the absence of the president, Anita Smith, vice-president, presided, and Miss Florence Hubbard was appointed temporary secretary. Miss Smith reported on the incorporation of the Guild Shop Cooperative and Miss Mari Bollman, chairman of the nominating committee presented the following slate for the board of directors: Anita Stallforth, Rasalind d'Albis, Zella Pike, one-year term; Anita Smith, Margaret Gruver, Martha Everett, two-year term; Florence Hubbard, Margaret Wetterau, Katherine Wangler, three-year term.

Since there were no nominations from the floor the secretary was directed to cast one ballot and the nominees were unanimously elected. Also Russell Cook and Albert Wangler were unanimously reelected as members of the auditing committee.

The directors met immediately following the consignors meeting and elected as president Miss Florence Hubbard. The other officers who continue in office are: Anita Smith, vice-president; Rosalind d'Albis, secretary; Anita Stallforth, treasurer; Katherine Wangler, shop executive.

Craft Directors Visit Here

Dr. Richard Murbach, chief of the Bureau of Occupational Extension of the State Education Department recently visited Woodstock, bringing Edgar H. Strong, newly appointed as associate in vocational arts and crafts education. The aim of the visit was to acquaint Strong with Guild craft studios and equipment and to visit some of the craft classes. Mrs. Murbach also accompanied her husband. After visiting classes and conferring with Mrs. Wangler and Miss Hubbard on the Vocational Craft Project the meeting adjourned to the home of Mrs. Blanche Rosett, chairman of the Guild's Educational Committee, where further discussion took place on possible future developments of the Vocational Craft Project.

Kickoff Dinner For Scouts Set Wednesday Night

Woodstock, Aug. 22—Charles Mullen, of West Shokan, Western District Finance chairman of the Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced today that plans are rapidly nearing completion for the district's participation in the annual finance campaign. He annouced that local campaign workers will contact all homes and business places in this area in the solicitation of funds which will materially assist the Council to carry out its intensified youth program throughout Ulster and Greene counties during the coming year. The Western District includes the communities of Woodstock, Bearsville, Lake Hill, West Hurley, Boiceville, Phoenicia, Mt. Tremper, Chichester, Samsonville, Olive Bridge, Allaben, Shandaken, Big Indian, Pine Hill, Shokan, West Shokan, and Ashokan.

The Rev. Harvey I. Todd, who will direct the campaign throughout the Woodstock area, has announced that there will be a kickoff dinner for campaign workers Wednesday at the Dutch Reformed Church basement at 6:30 p. m.

Budget Is $20,000

In his announcement, Chairman Mullen said that the Council budget for 1953 has been set at $20,000, of which the Western District has been asked to raise $1,350. Recent figures released by the Council office indicate that Scouting throughout the Council is at an all-time high, with a total boy-membership of more than 1990 distributed over 57 troops, 20 Cub Packs, and four Explorer Units. Of these totals the Western District is represented by 151 boys in five troops and two Cub Packs. There are, in addition, 74 Western District volunteer Scouters who are actively engaged in the Scouting organization in various capacities. From the upward trends in all phases of Scouting it is the Council's expectation that the total boy-membership will exceed 2,000 by the end of the year, with proportionate increases in all other totals.

Will Expand Program

Money raised during this campaign will make it possible for the Council to meet this expanded growth with adequate programming, trainer adult leadership, expanded and improved facilities at Camp Trimount, maintenance of the Council business office, trained professional Scouting advisors, and all other expenses which are necessary to the successful operation of a Council. The campaign is scheduled to be completed throughout the Council by Sept. 1.

Both Finance Chairman Mullen and Clifford Carnright, district chairman, unite in an appeal for the generous support of local citizens for this worthy cause, and have expressed their conviction that the importance of Scouting to every community and to the nation merits the whole-hearted support of every citizen. They feel confident that through the cooperation of the Western District general public the district goal will be achieved.

Collins Opens One-Man Show at Town House

Woodstock, Aug. 22—Pat Collins' spacial world of roof-top fantasy and pixie humor is well defined in his current one-man show which opened Friday afternoon at the Town House with a reception. Except for the two fine portraits included in the exhibition which have a Holbein quality in the perfection of their modeling, Collins is meticulously consistent in the world bounded by controlled emotion which he depicts.

All of Collins canvases are striking for their pure primary color, their distinct linear patterns and interesting shapes and forms. His humor sparkles in the small details and in the elusive titles he has given his paintings, among them, Is He Peculiar, She Wants Breakfast in Bed, What No Garlic, The Other Fellow Is Right and Too Many Doors.

The exhibition will continue through Sept. 7.

We have been wondering if there is anything we can do to change the worst of these without sacrificing the friendship of one whom we think a good deal of."

The only thing to do is contrast the fault with something nice such as: "Why do you do this one thing (whatever it is) when in every other way your behavior is so perfect."

Evading Age

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there some way that questions about a woman's age can be tactfully and lightly turned aside? I am sure I am not alone in this problem. I am a single woman, in mid-thirties, but believe I appear somewhat younger. It seems that whenever I meet someone new, men or women, they seem possessed to find out my age. If they don't ask directly, which is often, they ask what year I graduated from school, or how long I have been working, or some such question. This has happened so often and in the company of supposedly well-bred and polite people, that I am quite at a loss to know what to say. Is there some polite but vague answer?

Answer: The usual evasion is "I'm old enough to vote."

Of Course Wear His Flowers!

Dear Mrs. Post: Are the members of the immediate families the only women supposed to wear corsages at a wedding? My husband bought me a lovely one to wear to my cousin's wedding but I thought I shouldn't wear it. He was very much hurt.

Answer: I don't wonder your husband was hurt and I can't imagine why you didn't wear it. It certainly isn't the sole prerogative of the wedding party. There is no rule against a woman's wearing a corsage whenever she happens to be given one except, of course, at a funeral.

Shyness With Boys May Be Fear to Test Attractiveness

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Joyce's bedroom is decorated with pictures of movie stars who are reputed to have fatal fascination for the opposite sex. But Joyce herself, at 15, has never had a date with a boy.

As this is a source of much secret humiliation to her, you'd think she'd be glad to be asked for a date. She wasn't. Recently when the attractive boy cousin who was visiting next door asked her to go swimming with him, she first accepted the invitation — and then, in a panic, telephoned to him she had to baby-sit instead.

Her mother vigorously protested this behavior. Joyce's reaction was to burst into tears and retreat to her room, seeking consolation in chocolate cookies and movie magazines.

"Will she outgrow this shyness with boys?" her mother wants to know.

I couldn't say. Were I Joyce's mother, I would be less concerned with her shyness than with the idea behind it. For this shyness may express Joyce's conviction that, like her favorite movie stars, she must exert fatal fascination, too.

That is a terrible idea. It can put such a strain upon Joyce that she dares not accept a date with a boy. Indeed, it can force her to discourage his interest. The exaggerated demand she makes on her physical appeal may make it so impossible to test it with a boy that she avoids the risk of failing with him by ignoring or snubbing him.

Her point of view could be, "If I don't test my attractiveness, I won't have to discover I haven't any."

So now we know where we are. We've run away from the neighbor's attractive boy cousin because we don't think we can sustain his original interest.

At Joyce's age, lots of us feel like that. Though it's a mean feeling to face, it's good to face it. Then we may do something practical about it. We may stop overeating sweet cookies that are bad for our skin and quit envying movie stars' figures by losing some weight of our own.

If we reach the point where we can openly discuss our fear with other girls who suffer from it too, we may begin to lose the idea that we're a queer freak with a special awful problem.

That's an important point to reach. It means that we can regard ourselves as a normal girl, instead of an odd one. When this happens, that idea of having to score a knock-out with every boy we meet looks pretty silly.

Then we're ready to accept the fact that normal girls don't expect every date to fall in love with them.

Vogeler Is Suing For Half Million

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Robert Vogeler is suing his former employers, The International Telephone and Telegraph Co., for a half million dollars. An official of the firm says he is at a loss to explain why the one-time prisoner of Hungarian Communists brought the suit.

Vogeler, who spent 17 months in prison in Hungary on an espionage charge, was an executive of IT and T during that period and left the firm the first of the year.

Jacob Rosenberg, attorney for Vogeler, said Saturday night he had filed papers and served a summons in the suit against IT and T and a subsidiary, the International Standard Electrical Corp.

Rosenberg said he had not yet filed a complaint and declined to disclose details of the suit. He said only that it dealt with the period of Vogeler's imprisonment and was not a salary matter.

Doesn't Know Why

A. M. MacLennan, assistant vice president of the company, said yesterday he knew of nothing in Vogeler's relations with the firm to "justify a suit."

MacLennan added:

"I thought everything was amicable and that he had been treated fairly by the company. I think we accepted every responsibility we could to see that his family didn't suffer as a result of his imprisonment. We covered all the expenses in connection with his rehabilitation.

"When he asked to resign it was my impression he was just going to do a better job for himself lecturing and writing."

Vogeler was a vice president and representative of IT and T in Hungary when he was jailed.

More Than 300 Go

water and a huge sign emblazoned: "Welcome Home." On the pier a third band joined in and a pretty soprano sang "My Hero."

Dock, Deck Quieter

But on the promenade deck of the Walker—and on the dock below, among the families of more than 60 of the freed captives—it was much quieter.

There were scattered shouts as men who once wondered if they would ever see their loved ones again spotted a wife or child. But more often there were tightly clenched jaws and tears in the eyes which had stared too long at barbed wire and bleak North Korean stockades.

The green hills across San Francisco Bay to the north, the sight of gleaming tall buildings as the fog rolled back and even grey Alcatraz out in the bay—was a sight that seemed to bring lumps to everyone's throat.

On the pier below, many a wife sighted her husband and many a mother her son and started a happy shout—only to find it came out a sob. Some children, bewildered because they didn't quite understand it all, huddled in their mothers' arms, their backs to the fathers they had never seen or could barely remember.

Emotions Reach Peak

Emotions climbed to a peak in the everlasting minutes required to tie up the ship. They broke, finally, when the gangway was raised and the first of a stream of former prisoners ran down to the dock.

First ashore was Pfc. Roosevelt A. Lunn of Baltimore. Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing grabbed him by the hand and shook it. San Francisco Mayor Elmer Robinson did the same as Lunn's mother and most of nine brothers and sisters back in Baltimore watched the scene via a nation-wide television hookup.

On Lunn's heels came a steady stream of men pouring down into the huge pier shed. Families hung over white fence barriers and many of the former captives broke into a run for a reserved area where the relatives waited.

It was bathed white with the glare of television and movie lights. Flash bulbs popped and broadcasters dashed to and fro, dragging tangles of cable.

But No One Cared

But neither the repatriates nor their families minded. Arms were locked in once familiar embraces. Here a man looked with amazed pride on the picture of a new son he hadn't known. There another was surrounded and almost smothered in the crush of parents, brothers, sisters, children, cousins and uncles. Yet another explained to a solemn-faced child that their expected present was still in luggage brought ashore separately.

A mother stepped back and looked at her boy. "He's too thin, he's too thin," she said. But he scoffed and said he never felt better. He never did.

The men whose families couldn't make it hustled by, anxious for reunions of their own.

Finally, a major stepped to a microphone and gently suggested the men and their loved ones move off the pier so they could be checked out on leave and collect accrued pay and travel allowances.

By nightfall all but a few had been assigned travel accommodations by routes and means of their own choosing to army personnel centers nearest their homes. At the centers, all they need do is check in, present their orders and they begin 30-day furloughs.

The army explained that not only does this system make bookkeeping easier—the men report back to the same personnel centers after their leaves—the men are not forced to use up any leave time getting home.

Probe Continues In Woman's Death

Mrs. Walter E. Clark

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 24 (AP)—Investigators today continued to probe into the brutal slaying of Mrs. Walter E. Clark, principal owner of the Charleston Daily Mail, who was beaten to death in her fashionable home Friday night.

Except for a fragment of varnished oak wood found in a pool of blood beside the body, police admitted they were "up against a blank wall" in their investigation.

Police Chief Dewey Williams said the wood was being examined. He said it may have splintered off a weapon used to beat the socially prominent 59-year-old widow to death. Detectives said no motive had been established for the killing.

Picture Angle Cleared

A stranger was seen taking pictures of the Clark home about a week ago, but a phone call to police from an Ohio man yesterday doused speculation that the stranger may provide a clue to the slaying.

The man, unidentified by police, said he made photographs for an architectural firm studying different types of homes.

A caretaker and maid found Mrs. Clarke's body Saturday on the floor of the big living room. An autopsy showed she had died of multiple skull fractures and bleeding caused by blows on the head. There was no evidence of robbery.

Restaurant Is Burned

Madison, Conn., Aug. 24 (AP)—The Carriage Drive, fashionable colonial style restaurant converted from an old house and barn, was destroyed by fire last night and damage was estimated at $150,000. Fire Chiefs Elton Sheehan of nearby Guilford and Ernest Gauer of Madison said the blaze probably was started by a discarded cigarette.

Tragedy of War Also Fell Upon Highly-Placed Men

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Korean war showed again that U. S. casualty lists are no respecters of persons.

Among the 142,000 Americans reported killed, missing or wounded is the son of former 8th Army Commander Gen. James V. Van Fleet, and two sons, both wounded, of Gen. Charles L. Bolte, army chief in Europe.

The marine son of Allen Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), was severely wounded in action. Another marine, killed in Korea, was the son of Adm. Erhard J. C. Zvistgaard, chief of Denmark's military forces.

At Least 142 Counted

The full count of Korean war casualties among the sons of ranking officers won't be made until the military historians complete their work. But a spot check shows that at least 142 sons of army generals served in Korea, and that 35 of these were casualties.

President Eisenhower's son, Maj. John Eisenhower, served in Korea. He is still there and, it was disclosed yesterday, has been honored by the South Korean government for "outstanding professional skill, resourcefulness and ingenuity".

Gen. Van Fleet, now retired, was visiting Korea today, still holding the hope that his son, a missing air force officer, might show up alive. The son of Gen. Mark W. Clark, soon to retire from the Far East command, was wounded early in the Korean fighting. So was the son of Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme commander in Europe.

Two Purple Hearts, bestowed for wounds in action in Korea, went to the sons of Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, army commander in Alaska.

Two Are Named

The sons of two retired generals appeared on casualty lists of both World War 2 and Korea. The namesake, a major, of Maj. Gen. Alan W. Jones was taken prisoner in World War 2 and wounded in Korea. Maj. Clarence A. Martin, Jr., son of the major general of the same name, was wounded in the World War and is missing in the Far East.

Generals and flag officers fared somewhat better than their sons in Korea. The 8th Army lost its commander, Gen. Walton H. Walker, in a jeep accident in the battle zone at a crucial point in the war.

Only one other senior officer has appeared on the casualty lists from Korea, Maj. Gen. William Dean, who was captured and is still a prisoner in the early days of the conflict after leading a heroic stand against the Reds.

The navy's ranking casualty was a captain, wounded when his ship was hit by enemy artillery fire off the east coast of Korea. All of the services had casualties among their colonels (equivalent to navy rank of captain) but the final count by ranks will not be completed for months, possibly several years.

POWs Get $728,679 At Coast Paymaster's

San Francisco, Aug. 24 (AP)—After thousands of months behind Communist barbed wire, 328 repatriated POWs lined up at the army paymaster's window here yesterday and drew $728,679 back pay.

The first shipload of former Korean prisoners had their choice of being paid by government checks or in cash.

They set off for home with $565,000 in checks, $163,679 cash.

Some Men Say

tively mild treatment at the hands of the Chinese.

Gave Them Cigarettes

Cpl. Carl F. Trumdo of Woodburn, Iowa, said the Chinese who overran the 555th Field Artillery Battalion near Kumhaw last month gave the Americans cigarettes and candy and shook hands all around.

"They treated us like we weren't even prisoners," Trumdo said, "I'd say we were treated a thousand times better than the old timers."

"While we were marching up there, if a fellow dropped out, the guards grabbed hold of him and helped him up. When we had breaks in the march the guards would get out their cigarettes and light them for us."

Other Americans captured late in the war have told of mild treatment at the hands of their Communist captors when contrasted with that given POWs in the earlier days of brutal beatings, torture, starvation and death marches.

East Germany Is

closed seven major points in the new treaty:

1. Diplomatic representation in East Berlin and Moscow will be raised to embassy level.

2. Soviet-run enterprises in East Germany will be returned to the East Germans.

Will Reduce Costs

3. Soviet occupation costs will be reduced to a level of not more than five per cent of total East German revenues.

4. Russian authorities will take measures to release German war prisoners. Excluded from the pardon will be those "who committed particularly wicked crimes against humanity."

5. East Germany's debts to Russia since the war will be wiped out.

6. Reparations payments to Russia will end after next Jan. 1. The amount still due was listed at $2,537,000.

7. Russia will bolster the East Germany economy with shipments of food, coal, steel and other metals, cotton and other goods worth 500 million rubles, (147½ million dollars at the official Soviet exchange rate) and will extend credits of 485 million rubles (121¼ million dollars).

Of all the concessions, the release of more German war prisoners was expected to win the warmest response in Germany.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.® The price is only 98¢ a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly. ®Trade Mark.

Shyness With Boys May Be Fear to Test Attractiveness

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Joyce's bedroom is decorated with pictures of movie stars who are reputed to have fatal fascination for the opposite sex. But Joyce herself, at 15, has never had a date with a boy.

As this is a source of much secret humiliation to her, you'd think she'd be glad to be asked for a date. She wasn't. Recently when the attractive boy cousin who was visiting next door asked her to go swimming with him, she first accepted the invitation — and then, in a panic, telephoned to him she had to baby-sit instead.

Her mother vigorously protested this behavior. Joyce's reaction was to burst into tears and retreat to her room, seeking consolation in chocolate cookies and movie magazines.

"Will she outgrow this shyness with boys?" her mother wants to know.

I couldn't say. Were I Joyce's mother, I would be less concerned with her shyness than with the idea behind it. For this shyness may express Joyce's conviction that, like her favorite movie stars, she must exert fatal fascination, too.

That is a terrible idea. It can put such a strain upon Joyce that she dares not accept a date with a boy. Indeed, it can force her to discourage his interest. The exaggerated demand she makes on her physical appeal may make it so impossible to test it with a boy that she avoids the risk of failing with him by ignoring or snubbing him.

Her point of view could be, "If I don't test my attractiveness, I won't have to discover I haven't any."

So now we know where we are. We've run away from the neighbor's attractive boy cousin because we don't think we can sustain his original interest.

At Joyce's age, lots of us feel like that. Though it's a mean feeling to face, it's good to face it. Then we may do something practical about it. We may stop overeating sweet cookies that are bad for our skin and quit envying movie stars' figures by losing some weight of our own.

If we reach the point where we can openly discuss our fear with other girls who suffer from it too, we may begin to lose the idea that we're a queer freak with a special awful problem.

That's an important point to reach. It means that we can regard ourselves as a normal girl, instead of an odd one. When this happens, that idea of having to score a knock-out with every boy we meet looks pretty silly.

Then we're ready to accept the fact that normal girls don't expect every date to fall in love with them.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Find Healing Substance That Does Both— Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name Preparation H.® The price is only 98¢ a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember—if not entirely satisfied—your money will be refunded promptly. ®Trade Mark.

Vogeler Is Suing For Half Million

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—Robert Vogeler is suing his former employers, The International Telephone and Telegraph Co., for a half million dollars. An official of the firm says he is at a loss to explain why the one-time prisoner of Hungarian Communists brought the suit.

Vogeler, who spent 17 months in prison in Hungary on an espionage charge, was an executive of IT and T during that period and left the firm the first of the year.

Jacob Rosenberg, attorney for Vogeler, said Saturday night he had filed papers and served a summons in the suit against IT and T and a subsidiary, the International Standard Electrical Corp.

Rosenberg said he had not yet filed a complaint and declined to disclose details of the suit. He said only that it dealt with the period of Vogeler's imprisonment and was not a salary matter.

Doesn't Know Why

A. M. MacLennan, assistant vice president of the company, said yesterday he knew of nothing in Vogeler's relations with the firm to "justify a suit."

MacLennan added:

"I thought everything was amicable and that he had been treated fairly by the company. I think we accepted every responsibility we could to see that his family didn't suffer as a result of his imprisonment. We covered all the expenses in connection with his rehabilitation.

"When he asked to resign it was my impression he was just going to do a better job for himself lecturing and writing."

Vogeler was a vice president and representative of IT and T in Hungary when he was jailed.

More Than 300 Go

water and a huge sign emblazoned: "Welcome Home." On the pier a third band joined in and a pretty soprano sang "My Hero."

Dock, Deck Quieter

But on the promenade deck of the Walker—and on the dock below, among the families of more than 60 of the freed captives—it was much quieter.

There were scattered shouts as men who once wondered if they would ever see their loved ones again spotted a wife or child. But more often there were tightly clenched jaws and tears in the eyes which had stared too long at barbed wire and bleak North Korean stockades.

The green hills across San Francisco Bay to the north, the sight of gleaming tall buildings as the fog rolled back and even grey Alcatraz out in the bay—was a sight that seemed to bring lumps to everyone's throat.

On the pier below, many a wife sighted her husband and many a mother her son and started a happy shout—only to find it came out a sob. Some children, bewildered because they didn't quite understand it all, huddled in their mothers' arms, their backs to the fathers they had never seen or could barely remember.

Emotions Reach Peak

Emotions climbed to a peak in the everlasting minutes required to tie up the ship. They broke, finally, when the gangway was raised and the first of a stream of former prisoners ran down to the dock.

First ashore was Pfc. Roosevelt A. Lunn of Baltimore. Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing grabbed him by the hand and shook it. San Francisco Mayor Elmer Robinson did the same as Lunn's mother and most of nine brothers and sisters back in Baltimore watched the scene via a nation-wide television hookup.

On Lunn's heels came a steady stream of men pouring down into the huge pier shed. Families hung over white fence barriers and many of the former captives broke into a run for a reserved area where the relatives waited.

It was bathed white with the glare of television and movie lights. Flash bulbs popped and broadcasters dashed to and fro, dragging tangles of cable.

But No One Cared

But neither the repatriates nor their families minded. Arms were locked in once familiar embraces. Here a man looked with amazed pride on the picture of a new son he hadn't known. There another was surrounded and almost smothered in the crush of parents, brothers, sisters, children, cousins and uncles. Yet another explained to a solemn-faced child that their expected present was still in luggage brought ashore separately.

A mother stepped back and looked at her boy. "He's too thin, he's too thin," she said. But he scoffed and said he never felt better. He never did.

The men whose families couldn't make it hustled by, anxious for reunions of their own.

Finally, a major stepped to a microphone and gently suggested the men and their loved ones move off the pier so they could be checked out on leave and collect accrued pay and travel allowances.

By nightfall all but a few had been assigned travel accommodations by routes and means of their own choosing to army personnel centers nearest their homes. At the centers, all they need do is check in, present their orders and they begin 30-day furloughs.

The army explained that not only does this system make bookkeeping easier—the men report back to the same personnel centers after their leaves—the men are not forced to use up any leave time getting home.

Probe Continues In Woman's Death

Mrs. Walter E. Clark

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 24 (AP)—Investigators today continued to probe into the brutal slaying of Mrs. Walter E. Clark, principal owner of the Charleston Daily Mail, who was beaten to death in her fashionable home Friday night.

Except for a fragment of varnished oak wood found in a pool of blood beside the body, police admitted they were "up against a blank wall" in their investigation.

Police Chief Dewey Williams said the wood was being examined. He said it may have splintered off a weapon used to beat the socially prominent 59-year-old widow to death. Detectives said no motive had been established for the killing.

Picture Angle Cleared

A stranger was seen taking pictures of the Clark home about a week ago, but a phone call to police from an Ohio man yesterday doused speculation that the stranger may provide a clue to the slaying.

The man, unidentified by police, said he made photographs for an architectural firm studying different types of homes.

A caretaker and maid found Mrs. Clarke's body Saturday on the floor of the big living room. An autopsy showed she had died of multiple skull fractures and bleeding caused by blows on the head. There was no evidence of robbery.

Tragedy of War Also Fell Upon Highly-Placed Men

Washington, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Korean war showed again that U. S. casualty lists are no respectors of persons.

Among the 142,000 Americans reported killed, missing or wounded is the son of former 8th Army Commander Gen. James V. Van Fleet, and two sons, both wounded, of Gen. Charles L. Bolte, army chief in Europe.

The marine son of Allen Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), was severely wounded in action. Another marine, killed in Korea, was the son of Adm. Erhard J. C. Zvistgaard, chief of Denmark's military forces.

At Least 142 Counted

The full count of Korean war casualties among the sons of ranking officers won't be made until the military historians complete their work. But a spot check shows that at least 142 sons of army generals served in Korea, and that 35 of these were casualties.

President Eisenhower's son, Maj. John Eisenhower, served in Korea. He is still there and, it was disclosed yesterday, has been honored by the South Korean government for "outstanding professional skill, resourcefulness and ingenuity".

Gen. Van Fleet, now retired, was visiting Korea today, still holding the hope that his son, a missing air force officer, might show up alive. The son of Gen. Mark W. Clark, soon to retire from the Far East command, was wounded early in the Korean fighting. So was the son of Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme commander in Europe.

Two Purple Hearts, bestowed for wounds in action in Korea, went to the sons of Maj. Gen. William M. Miley, army commander in Alaska.

Two Are Named

The sons of two retired generals appeared on casualty lists of both World War 2 and Korea. The namesake, a major, of Maj. Gen. Alan W. Jones was taken prisoner in World War 2 and wounded in Korea. Maj. Clarence A. Martin, Jr., son of the major general of the same name, was wounded in the World War and is missing in the Far East.

Generals and flag officers fared somewhat better than their sons in Korea. The 8th Army lost its commander, Gen. Walton H. Walker, in a jeep accident in the battle zone at a crucial point in the war.

Only one other senior officer has appeared on the casualty lists from Korea, Maj. Gen. William Dean, who was captured and is still a prisoner in the early days of the conflict after leading a heroic stand against the Reds.

The navy's ranking casualty was a captain, wounded when his ship was hit by enemy artillery fire off the east coast of Korea. All of the services had casualties among their colonels (equivalent to navy rank of captain) but the final count by ranks will not be completed for months, possibly several years.

POWs Get $728,679 At Coast Paymaster's

San Francisco, Aug. 24 (AP)—After thousands of months behind Communist barbed wire, 328 repatriated POWs lined up at the army paymaster's window here yesterday and drew $728,679 back pay.

The first shipload of former Korean prisoners had their choice of being paid by government checks or in cash.

They set off for home with $565,000 in checks, $163,679 cash.

Some Men Say

tively mild treatment at the hands of the Chinese.

Gave Them Cigarettes

Cpl. Carl F. Trumdo of Woodburn, Iowa, said the Chinese who overran the 555th Field Artillery Battalion near Kumhaw last month gave the Americans cigarettes and candy and shook hands all around.

"They treated us like we weren't even prisoners," Trumdo said, "I'd say we were treated a thousand times better than the old timers."

"While we were marching up there, if a fellow dropped out, the guards grabbed hold of him and helped him up. When we had breaks in the march the guards would get out their cigarettes and light them for us."

Other Americans captured late in the war have told of mild treatment at the hands of their Communist captors when contrasted with that given POWs in the earlier days of brutal beatings, torture, starvation and death marches.

East Germany Is

closed seven major points in the new treaty:

1. Diplomatic recognition of East Berlin and Moscow will be raised to embassy level.

2. Soviet-run enterprises in East Germany will be returned to the East Germans.

Will Reduce Costs

3. Soviet occupation costs will be reduced to a level of not more than five per cent of total East German revenues.

4. Russian authorities will take measures to release German war prisoners. Excluded from the pardon will be those "who committed particularly wicked crimes against humanity."

5. East Germany's debts to Russia since the war will be wiped out.

6. Reparations payments to Russia will end after next Jan. 1. The amount still due was listed at $2,537,000.

7. Russia will bolster the East Germany economy with shipments of food, coal, steel and other metals, cotton and other goods worth 500 million rubles, (147½ million dollars at the official Soviet exchange rate) and will extend credits of 485 million rubles (121¼ million dollars).

Of all the concessions, the release of more German war prisoners was expected to win the warmest response in Germany.

St. Joseph's Win Archdiocesan CYO Title

Ashdown's Single Nips Staten Island Nine, 2-1

St. Joseph's CYO Seniors were held to one hit by a young Staten Island right hander in the Archdiocesan CYO baseball finals Sunday at Fordham Field in New York.

But Ronnie Ashdown turned it into the biggest blow of the 1953 season and a thrilling 2-1 victory for Frank Reis.

Ronnie's two-run single in the first inning was all the help Reis needed as he went on to throttle the Assumption squad of Staten Island, 2 to 1, on a five-hitter. The Assumption run in the fourth inning was unearned.

The opposing hurler, who fanned 12, Frank Paoluccio, contributed to his own downfall in the hectic first inning.

With Ed Lindhurst on first base as the result of a walk, Paoluccio elected to try for the force play at second on Tony Altamore's bunt. The throw was too late and both runners were safe. They moved up a notch with a double steal and that put runners on second and third with none out.

Ashdown Delivers

Paoluccio fanned Joey Hoffman and got Bob Fay on a rap to first while the runners held and seemed to be out of the woods when Ronnie Ashdown singled cleanly inside third base to chase Lindhurst and Altamore across with the two precious markers.

The big right hander was in complete command after that, pitching six hitless innings and striking out the side in the fifth.

Reis, although yielding five hits in comparison to Paoluccio's one, never permitted more than one in any inning and it took an unearned run to deprive him of a well deserved shutout. The Staten Island run scored in the fourth inning.

The St. Joseph's victory gave Ulster county two CYO baseball titles this season. A week ago, Tony Turck pitched the CYO Midgets to the archdiocesenal championship.

Flip Rosen Bids For Triple Crown In Junior Loop

Al Rosen

BY JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland's vanishing Indians rate as the biggest flop in the American League but Al Rosen, their chief hatchet man, is heading for the elusive triple crown as well as the circuit's most valuable player award.

The slashing third baseman, who gave evidence of future stardom when he led the league in home runs in his rookie year in 1950, is the No. 1 guy today in batting, .326; runs batted in, 116; and home runs, 33.

Only three players in each league in the long history of the game have been able to win the triple crown. They were the American League's Ted Williams (1942, 1947) Lou Gehrig (1934) and Jimmy Foxx (1933); and the National League's Rogers Hornsby (1922 , 1925). Chuck Klein (1933) and Joe Medwick (1937).

Al got three hits in six times at bat as the Indians clubbed the St. Louis Browns twice 2-1 and 9-0. His 33rd homer supported Art Houtteman's shutout pitching in the nightcap and he batted in four runs.

Raschi Blanks A's

The third place Indians still remained 13 games behind the league's leading Yankees, who blanked the Philadelphia Athletics 4-0 behind the six-hit pitching pitching of Vic Raschi. The runner-up Chicago White Sox struggled to within 8½ games of the Yankees, sweeping a twin bill from the Detroit Tigers 2-1 and 11-6. Boston's Red Sox vanquished Washington 5-4, with the help of Ted Williams' fifth home run in 25 official times at bat since his return from Korea.

Brooklyn's National League pacemakers increased their margin over Milwaukee to nine games, drubbing the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates twice 10-4 and 9-7 while the Chicago Cubs were holding the Braves to a split in their two games.

Braves Stopped

Johnny Klippstein snapped the Braves' eight-game winning streak, pitching the Cubs to a 7-2 triumph after Warren Spahn had hurled his 16th victory in Milwaukee's 10-2 opening success.

Earl Torgeson drove in three runs with a home run and single to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-2 triumph and a sweep of the four game series with New York. It was the seventh straight loss for the Giants.

Southpaw Kenny Raffensberger pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis, dropping the Cardinal's into fourth place a half game behind the Phillies, and won his seventh game with a two-run double in the ninth.

Raschi's victory was his 26th in 31 lifetime decisions against the A's. Hank Bauer's ninth home run, in the fifth inning, was all New York needed to whip Harry Byrd.

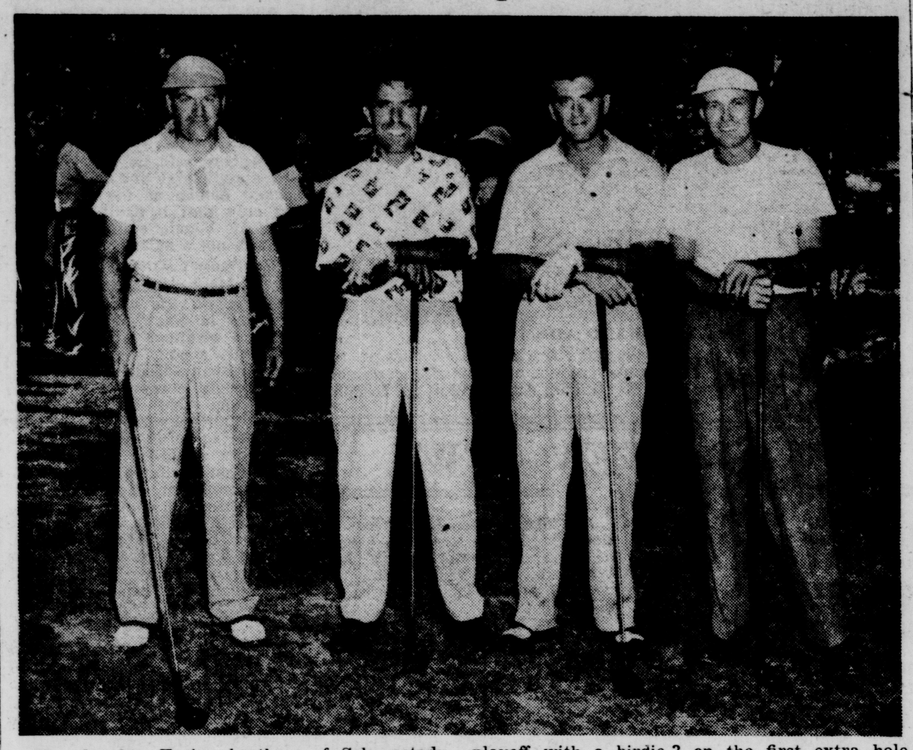

Sub Helps Chisox

Rookie first baseman Bob Boyd, subbing for the injured Ferris Fain, cracked key blows in both Chicago victories over the Tigers. He tripled in the ninth and scored the winning run on Sam Mele's single in the first game. Boyd drove in a run with a double and laced two singles in the nightcap.

Duke Snider batted in seven runs with his 30th and 31st homers, a pair of doubles and a single as the Dodgers made it 16 victories in their last 17 games. Gil Hodges also homered and drove in four runs as Russ Meyer won his 12th with a seven-hitter over the Pirates in the opener.

Randy Jackson rapped a double and two singles in three official times at bat, driving in two runs and scoring twice to back up Klippstein's six-hit pitching for Chicago.

Finalists and Amateur Champ in Woodstock Open

The doughty Farina brothers of Schenectady and Frank Stuhler of Amsterdam finished in a tie for professional honors with 27-hole scores of 104 in Friday's Woodstock Open. Armand won the playoff with a birdie-3 on the first extra hole. Tuesday—Kingston vs. Recs, 5:45 p. m.; VFW vs. Hercules, 8 p. m.

Jack Houghtaling tossed a one-hitter and struck out 10 to pitch Hercules to a 9-0 victory over the Recreations yesterday in the Recreation League at municipal stadium.

VFW scored its first triumph of the season and handed the Kingstons their initial loss with a 6-5 squeaker in the nightcap of a doubleheader.

The results left the Kingstons and Hercules tied for the league lead with two wins and one loss each. Recs and VFW both have 1-2 records.

Gordon Snaps Spell

The lone Recreation safety was a single by Bob Gordon. Hercules collected eight hits off Al Short and Bruce Bechtold, including two singles by Joe Markle and a triple by Bob Shelightner. Jim Jackson had three RBIs for Hercules.

Johnny Armstrong's tremendous homer to the left center field bank was the key wallop in the VFW's narrow win over the Kingstons.

Tony Altamore yielded only two hits and fanned seven but eight VFW errors kept him in constant trouble. The winners collected seven safeties off Ronnie Brandt and Joe Modica, including three singles by Bob Bondar and a pair by Ed Van Loan.

Rochester Man Cops Skeet Title

Rochester, Aug. 24 (AP) — Leo Balastreri, of Rochester, notched a perfect over-all score of 125 yesterday to win the Empire State Open all-bore skeet shooting championship.

Balastreri and Dr. Ben Di Iorio, of Utica, were tied with perfect scores of 100 at the close of regular competition. Balastreri won in a shoot-off by a margin of 25-23.

The two-man team championship went to Di Iorio and his son, Ben Jr., who scored 189 out of a possible 200. The son also won the Empire State Open high overall championship with a score of 242 out of 250.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Al Rosen, Indians—Clouted his 33rd home run, drove in four runs and rapped two singles to take over the batting lead and strengthen his top home run and RBI totals as the Indians captured both ends of a doubleheader from St. Louis 3-1 and 9-0.

Pitching—Vic Raschi, Yankees—Hurled a six-hit shutout for his 26th victory in 31 outings against the Atheltics as the Yankees won 4-0.

The San Francisco 49ers will make their only New York appearance this year when they meet the football Giants in the Polo Grounds on Sept. 17.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

John Smith was not the first one to be faced with the frustrating impasse in training a dog to retrieve. There are many who can sympathize with him as they know what it means to have a dog mark a bird, make a good pickup and reurn to within 10 or 15 feet and then get reluctant and drop the bird.

John, like so many others, had tried all kinds of coaxing. "Come on Ginger girl—atta baby—bring it here little girl." But the trend of this one-sided conversation usually wound up, "let's have it baby—come on little girl—fetch it here you stupid knuckle-head—what's the matter with you anyway! A sharp rise in bloodpressure generally followed.

"And you tell me to turn around and walk away," said John. "What's the reason for it?" You say that there's a reason for everything we do in dog handling."

Lets consider a simple analogy. Supposing you were throwing a ball for your three-year-old boy. You toss the ball across the lawn and he toddles after it and brings it back waiting for another toss. If he wants a little extra attention, he can get it very easily by playing it cute and hard-to-get when he brings the ball back.

If you try to get it, he'll come just so far and then withdraw. This becomes a game with him enjoying your competition for the ball. On the other hand, if you say, "Okay! If you don't want to play, I'll go read the paper," and then turn away as if to do so, he'll come running.

When your dog plays hard-to-get, just turn away as he approaches and he'll follow to complete the retrieve.

Watch professional handlers at spaniel trails. You can spot the reluctant dogs by observing when the handlers turn and walk a few steps back as the dog approaches.

At trials, I would suspect any dog when the handler uses this tactic. The only way to make sure would be to tell the handler beforehand that he must remain in one spot to accept his retrieves. Meanwhile, what's effective for the professionals should work for you.

Snap Nine-Game Winning Streak Of Losers, 6-5

Weekend Results

Newburgh 14, Kingston 10.
Poughkeepsie 4, Newburgh 2.
Kingston 6, Poughkeepsie 5.

Thoroughly pummelled in the first three games of the Hudson valley semi-pro round robin championship series, the Kingston Colonials rebounded with a sparkling 6-5 victory over the Poughkeepsie All Stars last night under the arclights at Riverview Field.

The Kingston victory, engineered by Big Zeke Klosterman's effective hurling in the clutches and the booming bats of Tom Carlino and Red Gorsline, snapped a 9-game winning streak of the surprised and chagrined Bridge City swingers.

Manager Dick Whitesell's tossers had won six in a row against independent competition and three straight in the valley series until they ran into the Colonials last night.

Ostrom Beats Jewels

Earlier in the day they had whipped the Newburgh Jewels 4-2, at the Hill City behind Billy Ostrom's pitching.

Saturday night at municipal stadium, the Jewels outlasted the Colonials, 14-10, in a three-hour marathon, featured by 29 hits, 11 errors and 20 stranded runners.

Klosterman, who was nicked for 12 hits and left 11 runners stranded, had to choke off a ninth inning rally by Poughkeepsie to insure the Colonials their first tournament victory.

The Colonials led 6-1 at the end of seven. The Whitesells scored twice in the eighth and were apparently subdued in the ninth when they erupted with two outs.

Billy Ostrom singled and Dick Rathburn walked. Jake Charter singled and Leo Elwell doubled making it 6-5 and leaving Elwell on second when "Lefty" Passante gloved Martin's hard rap to first for the third out.

Gorsline Gets 4 Hits

Gorsline pounded three singles and a double and Carlino contributed a two-run triple in the four-run rally off Bob Byrne in the fifth inning. An error by pitcher Byrne led to his own downfall. J. Passante walked with one out, Gorseline singled to right center and Klosterman fanned.

Apparently out of trouble, Byrne fumbled Schaffer's tap to the box. Passante scored and Gorsline went to second. Ed Passante scored the second run and Carlino tripled to deep right center scoring two more runs.

Carlino had a big weekend with four hits and seven RBIs. He powered a tremendous homer Saturday night and knocked in five runs with the round tripper and two singles. Eddie Passante also hit safely twice for the Colonials.

Newburgh's batting star was Manager Bobby "Irish" Newhard who collected five of the Jewels' 18 safeties off Jim Ferraro, who went the distance.

Jim Lawson, the Jewel flinger, and John Ranalli each had three hits for Newburgh. Lawson allowed 11 hits and only four earned runs to register his 7th win of the season and first in the playoffs.

Jones Dairy Faces Two Big Games in Twilight League

This is the week of decision for Jones Dairy's resurgent City Baseball League entry.

The fine comeback they achieved in the second round of the twilight circuit can be parlayed into the championship playoff if they can dispose of Wiltwyck Motors on Tuesday and Dobler's on Thursday.

In the other game this week, Colonial Merchants oppose Kingston Indians in the playoff of a tie game.

St. Joseph's Win Archdiocesan CYO Title

Ashdown's Single Nips Staten Island Nine, 2-1

St. Joseph's CYO Seniors were held to one hit by a young Staten Island right hander in the Archdiocesan CYO baseball finals Sunday at Fordham Field in New York.

But Ronnie Ashdown turned it into the biggest blow of the 1953 season and a thrilling 2-1 victory for Frank Reis.

Ronnie's two-run single in the first inning was all the help Reis needed as he went on to throttle the Assumption squad of Staten Island, 2 to 1, on a five-hitter. The Assumption run in the fourth inning was unearned.

The opposing hurler, who fanned 12, Frank Paoluccio, contributed to his own downfall in the hectic first inning.

With Ed Lindhurst on first base as the result of a walk, Paoluccio elected to try for the force play at second on Tony Altamore's bunt. The throw was too late and both runners were safe. They moved up a notch with a double steal and that put runners on second and third with none out.

Ashdown Delivers

Paoluccio fanned Joey Hoffman and got Bob Fay on a rap to first while the runners held and seemed to be out of the woods when Ronnie Ashdown singled cleanly inside third base to chase Lindhurst and Altamore across with the two precious markers.

The big right hander was in complete command after that, pitching six hitless innings and striking out the side in the fifth.

Reis, although yielding five hits in comparison to Paoluccio's one, never permitted more than one in any inning and it took an unearned run to deprive him of a well deserved shutout. The Staten Island run scored in the fourth inning.

The St. Joseph's victory gave Ulster county two CYO baseball titles this season. A week ago, Tony Turck pitched the CYO Midgets to the archdiocesenal championship.

Flip Rosen Bids For Triple Crown In Junior Loop

Al Rosen

BY JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland's vanishing Indians rate as the biggest flop in the American League but Al Rosen, their chief hatchet man, is heading for the elusive triple crown as well as the circuit's most valuable player award.

The slashing third baseman, who gave evidence of future stardom when he led the league in home runs in his rookie year in 1950, is the No. 1 guy today in batting, .326; runs batted in, 116; and home runs, 33.

Only three players in each league in the long history of the game have been able to win the triple crown. They were the American League's Ted Williams (1942, 1947) Lou Gehrig (1934) and Jimmy Foxx (1933); and the National League's Rogers Hornsby (1922, 1925). Chuck Klein (1933) and Joe Medwick (1937).

Al got three hits in six times at bat as the Indians clubbed the St. Louis Browns twice 2-1 and 9-0. His 33rd homer supported Art Houtteman's shutout pitching in the nightcap and he batted in four runs.

Raschi Blanks A's

The third place Indians still remained 13 games behind the league's leading Yankees, who blanked the Philadelphia Athletics 4-0 behind the six-hit pitching of Vic Raschi. The runner-up Chicago White Sox struggled to within 8½ games of the Yankees, sweeping a twin bill from the Detroit Tigers 2-1 and 11-6. Boston's Red Sox vanquished Washington 5-4, with the help of Ted Williams' fifth home run in 25 official times at bat since his return from Korea.

Brooklyn's National League pacemakers increased their margin over Milwaukee to nine games, drubbing the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates twice 10-4 and 9-7 while the Chicago Cubs were holding the Braves to a split in their two games.

Braves Stopped

Johnny Klippstein snapped the Braves' eight-game winning streak, pitching the Cubs to a 7-2 triumph after Warren Spahn had hurled his 16th victory in Milwaukee's 10-2 opening success.

Earl Torgeson drove in three runs with a home run and single to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-2 triumph and a sweep of the four game series with New York. It was the seventh straight loss for the Giants.

Southpaw Kenny Raffensberger pitched the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis, dropping the Cardinal's into fourth place a half game behind the Phillies, and won his seventh game with a two-run double in the ninth.

Raschi's victory was his 26th in 31 lifetime decisions against the A's. Hank Bauer's ninth home run, in the fifth inning, was all New York needed to whip Harry Byrd.

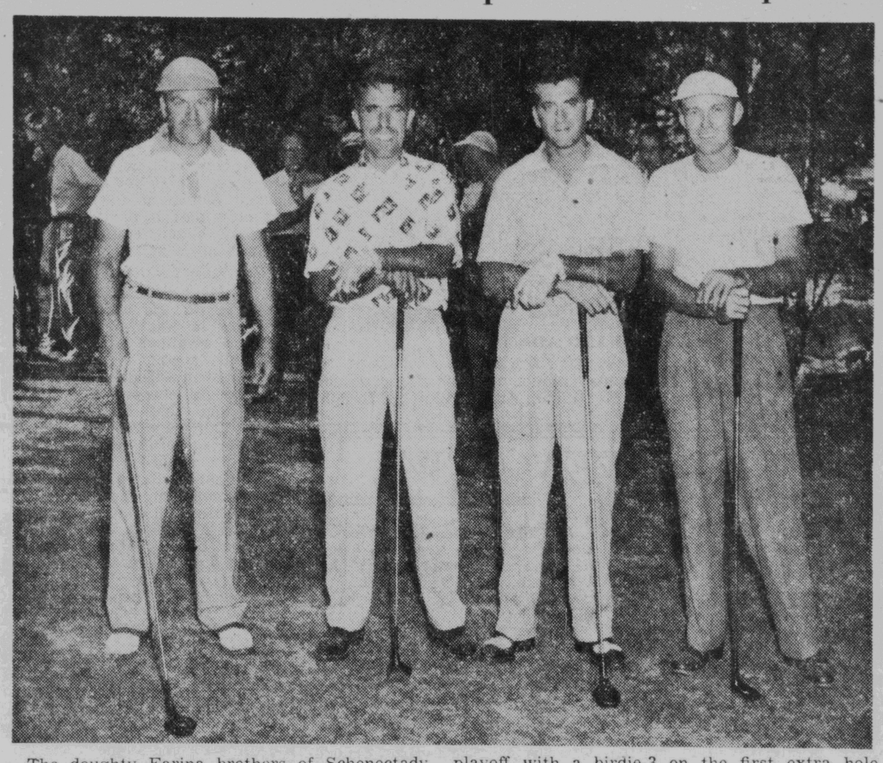

Sub Helps Chisox

Rookie first baseman Bob Boyd, subbing for the injured Ferris Fain, cracked key blows in both Chicago victories over the Tigers. He tripled in the ninth and scored the winning run on Sam Mele's single in the first game. Boyd drove in a run with a double and laced two singles in the nightcap.

Duke Snider batted in seven runs with his 30th and 31st homers, a pair of doubles and a single as the Dodgers made it 16 victories in their last 17 games. Gil Hodges also homered and drove in four runs as Russ Meyer won his 12th with a seven-hitter over the Pirates in the opener.

Randy Jackson rapped a double and two singles in three official times at bat, driving in two runs and scoring twice to back up Klippstein's six-hit pitching for Chicago.

Finalists and Amateur Champ in Woodstock Open

The doughty Farina brothers of Schenectady and Frank Stuhler of Amsterdam finished in a tie for professional honors with 27-hole scores of 104 in Friday's Woodstock Open. Armand won the playoff with a birdie-3 on the first extra hole. Games This Week

Tuesday—Kingston vs. Recs, 5:45 p. m.; VFW vs. Hercules, 8 p. m.

Jack Houghtaling tossed a one-hitter and struck out 10 to pitch Hercules to a 9-0 victory over the Recreations yesterday in the Recreation League at municipal stadium.

VFW scored its first triumph of the season and handed the Kingstons their initial loss with a 6-5 squeaker in the nightcap of a doubleheader.

The results left the Kingstons and Hercules tied for the league lead with two wins and one loss each. Recs and VFW both have 1-2 records.

Gordon Snaps Spell

The lone Recreation safety was a single by Bob Gordon. Hercules collected eight hits off Al Short and Bruce Bechtold, including two singles by Joe Markle and a triple by Bob Shelightner. Jim Jackson had three RBIs for Hercules.

Johnny Armstrong's tremendous homer to the left center field bank was the key wallop in the VFW's narrow win over the Kingstons.

Tony Altamore yielded only two hits and fanned seven but eight VFW errors kept him in constant trouble. The winners collected seven safeties off Ronnie Brandt and Joe Modica, including three singles by Bob Bondar and a pair by Ed Van Loan.

Rochester Man Cops Skeet Title

Rochester, Aug. 24 (AP) — Leo Balastreri, of Rochester, notched a perfect over-all score of 125 yesterday to win the Empire State Open all-bore skeet shooting championship.

Balastreri and Dr. Ben Di Iorio, of Utica, were tied with perfect scores of 100 at the close of regular competition. Balastreri won in a shoot-off by a margin of 25-23.

The two-man team championship went to Di Iorio and his son, Ben Jr., who scored 189 out of a possible 200. The son also won the Empire State Open high overall championship with a score of 242 out of 250.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Al Rosen, Indians—Clouted his 33rd home run, drove in four runs and rapped two singles to take over the batting lead and strengthen his top home run and RBI totals as the Indians captured both ends of a doubleheader from St. Louis 3-1 and 9-0.

Pitching—Vic Raschi, Yankees—Hurled a six-hit shutout for his 26th victory in 31 outings against the Atheltics as the Yankees won 4-0.

The San Francisco 49ers will make their only New York appearance this year when they meet the football Giants in the Polo Grounds on Sept. 17.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By JOE STETSON
(Dog Editor)

John Smith was not the first one to be faced with the frustrating impasse in training a dog to retrieve. There are many who can sympathize with him as they know what it means to have a dog mark a bird, make a good pickup and reurn to within 10 or 15 feet and then get reluctant and drop the bird.

John, like so many others, had tried all kinds of coaxing. "Come on Ginger girl—atta baby—bring it here little girl." But the trend of this one-sided conversation usually wound up, "let's have it baby—come on little girl—fetch it here you stupid knuckle-head—what's the matter with you anyway! A sharp rise in bloodpressure generally followed.

"And you tell me to turn around and walk away," said John. "What's the reason for it?" You say that there's a reason for everything we do in dog handling."

Lets consider a simple analogy. Supposing you were throwing a ball for your three-year-old boy. You toss the ball across the lawn and he toddles after it and brings it back waiting for another toss. If he wants a little extra attention, he can get it very easily by playing it cute and hard-to-get when he brings the ball back.

If you try to get it, he'll come just so far and then withdraw. This becomes a game with him enjoying your competition for the ball. On the other hand, if you say, "Okay! If you don't want to play, I'll go read the paper," and then turn away as if to do so, he'll come running.

When your dog plays hard-to-get, just turn away as he approaches and he'll follow to complete the retrieve.

Watch professional handlers at spaniel trails. You can spot the reluctant dogs by observing when the handlers turn and walk a few steps back as the dog approaches.

At trials, I would suspect any dog when the handler uses this tactic. The only way to make sure would be to tell the handler beforehand that he must remain in one spot to accept his retrieves. Meanwhile, what's effective for the professionals should work for you.

Maurice Kuykendall, former assistant starter at Monmouth Park, starts the thoroughbreds at Mexico City's Hipodromo de las Americas track.

Snap Nine-Game Winning Streak Of Losers, 6-5

Weekend Results

Newburgh 14, Kingston 10.
Poughkeepsie 4, Newburgh 2.
Kingston 6, Poughkeepsie 5.

Thoroughly pummelled in the first three games of the Hudson valley semi-pro round robin championship series, the Kingston Colonials rebounded with a sparkling 6-5 victory over the Poughkeepsie All Stars last night under the arclights at Riverview Field.

The Kingston victory, engineered by Big Zeke Klosterman's effective hurling in the clutches and the booming bats of Tom Carlino and Red Gorsline, snapped a 9-game winning streak of the surprised and chagrined Bridge City swingers.

Manager Dick Whitesell's tossers had won six in a row against independent competition and three straight in the valley series until they ran into the Colonials last night.

Ostrom Beats Jewels

Earlier in the day they had whipped the Newburgh Jewels 4-2, at the Hill City behind Billy Ostrom's pitching.

Saturday night at municipal stadium, the Jewels outlasted the Colonials, 14-10, in a three-hour marathon, featured by 29 hits, 11 errors and 20 stranded runners.

Klosterman, who was nicked for 12 hits and left 11 runners stranded, had to choke off a ninth inning rally by Poughkeepsie to insure the Colonials their first tournament victory.

The Colonials led 6-1 at the end of seven. The Whitesells scored twice in the eighth and were apparently subdued in the ninth when they erupted with two outs.

Billy Ostrom singled and Dick Rathburn walked. Jake Charter singled and Leo Elwell doubled making it 6-5 and leaving Elwell on second when "Lefty" Passante gloved Martin's hard rap to first for the third out.

Gorsline Gets 4 Hits

Gorsline pounded three singles and a double and Carlino contributed a two-run triple in the four-run rally off Bob Byrne in the fifth inning. An error by pitcher Byrne led to his own downfall. J. Passante walked with one out, Gorseline singled to right center and Klosterman fanned.

Apparently out of trouble, Byrne fumbled Schaffer's tap to the box. Passante scored and Gorsline went to second. Ed Passante scored the second run and Carlino tripled to deep right center scoring two more runs.

Carlino had a big weekend with four hits and seven RBIs. He powered a tremendous homer Saturday night and knocked in five runs with the round tripper and two singles. Eddie Passante also hit safely twice for the Colonials.

Newburgh's batting star was Manager Bobby "Irish" Newhard who collected five of the Jewels' 18 safeties off Jim Ferraro, who went the distance.

Jim Lawson, the Jewel flinger, and John Ranalli each had three hits for Newburgh. Lawson allowed 11 hits and only four earned runs to register his 7th win of the season and first in the playoffs.

Jones Dairy Faces Two Big Games in Twilight League

This is the week of decision for Jones Dairy's resurgent City Baseball League entry.

The fine comeback they achieved in the second round of the twilight circuit can be parlayed into the championship playoff if they can dispose of Wiltwyck Motors on Tuesday and Dobler's on Thursday.

The Motormen with a 3-3 record apparently can be taken, but Doblers pose a different problem. They have been tough in their last two outings.

Brooklyn Youth Cops AAU Long Distance Swim at Williams Lake

14-Year Old Star Is Three Minutes Ahead of Field

Fourteen-year-old Eugene Adler, sensational Brooklyn YMCA merman, splashed home first in the National AAU Men's Senior Long Distance swimming championships Sunday at Williams Lake.

A record breaking crowd watched the race in perfect water and weather conditions, as young Adler finished three minutes ahead of the second place entry, Frank Matter of the Cleveland Elks.

Team honors went to the crack trio of the Cleveland Elks Club composed of Frank Matter, Mark Morris and Bob Perry.

Forty-four-year-old Myron S. Peters of Bound Brook, N. J., swimming unattached, won the special prize for the first swimmer over 35 years of age to finish.

Leads All the Way

Young Adler jumped to the lead at the crack of the starter's gun and was never seriously challenged during the entire four-mile grind.

George Holtrey of the Huntington, Indiana, YMCA finished third.

The Cleveland Elks Club captured the team championship with 12 points, winning 2nd, 4th and 6th place, while the Hoosiers squad of George Holtrey, Jerry Holtrey and Bill Shriner finished second with 15 points. Team honors in this event, like cross country races in track, go to the teams with the lowest score.

Brooklyn Central YMCA team of Adler, Donofrio, and Cohen, scored 22 points for third place. Last year's champions, Ohrbach AA, had to settle for fourth place with 29 points.

Youngest and Oldest

Youngest swimmer to complete the grind was 12-year-old Bill Shriner, who swam a beautiful race to finish 8th, while the oldest entry was the perennial starter from Orange, N. J., 67-year-old Walter Pofahl, who got a tremendous ovation as he finished in 21st place. All but one of the 24 starters finished the four-mile grind.

The meet was refereed by Charles Roeser, of Landsdowne, Pa., men's national swimming chairman of the AAU. Other officials included William Leonard of Schenectady, representing the Adirondack division of the AAU; Harry Hainsworth, New York, assistant to the president of the AAU and Robert Alexander of New York.

Fred Dippel, athletic director of Williams Lake, was clerk of the course. Walter Williams served as the announcer.

Coleman Returns Eager and Ready to Join the Yankees

San Mateo, Calif., Aug. 24 (AP)—"Fit as a fiddle and eager to get back to the Yankees," Marine Capt. Gerry Coleman is home after 63 Korean air combat missions.

The world champs' second base ace arrived at Travis Air Force Base yesterday, the lone passenger on an Air Force transport plane. After greeting his family, his next thoughts were of baseball.

"I feel that if the opportunity presents itself, in a week or 10 days maybe I could pinch run or something," he grinned.

"I'm in awfully good shape, but of course I won't know for sure about that myself until I get back in there and try."

The Yankee management was jubilant. A scout met Coleman to size him up and bring him up to date.

And the champs' brass quickly scheduled a Gerry Coleman Day in Yankee Stadium Sept. 12. They added they expect Gerry to rejoin the team this week.

Brooklyn Youth Cops AAU Long Distance Swim at Williams Lake

14-Year Old Star Is Three Minutes Ahead of Field

Fourteen-year-old Eugene Adler, sensational Brooklyn YMCA merman, splashed home first in the National AAU Men's Senior Long Distance swimming championships Sunday at Williams Lake.

A record breaking crowd watched the race in perfect water and weather conditions, as young Adler finished three minutes ahead of the second place entry, Frank Matter of the Cleveland Elks.

Team honors went to the crack trio of the Cleveland Elks Club composed of Frank Matter, Mark Morris and Bob Perry.

Forty-four-year-old Myron S. Peters of Bound Brook, N. J., swimming unattached, won the special prize for the first swimmer over 35 years of age to finish.

Leads All the Way

Young Adler jumped to the lead at the crack of the starter's gun and was never seriously challenged during the entire four-mile grind.

George Holtrey of the Huntington, Indiana, YMCA finished third.

The Cleveland Elks Club captured the team championship with 12 points, winning 2nd, 4th and 6th place, while the Hoosiers squad of George Holtrey, Jerry Holtrey and Bill Shriner finished second with 15 points. Team honors in this event, like cross country races in track, go to the teams with the lowest score.

Brooklyn Central YMCA team of Adler, Donofrio, and Cohen, scored 22 points for third place. Last year's champions, Ohrbach AA, had to settle for fourth place with 29 points.

Youngest and Oldest

Youngest swimmer to complete the grind was 12-year-old Bill Shriner, who swam a beautiful race to finish 8th, while the oldest entry was the perennial starter from Orange, N. J., 67-year-old Walter Pofahl, who got a tremendous ovation as he finished in 21st place. All but one of the 24 starters finished the four-mile grind.

The meet was refereed by Charles Roeser, of Landsdowne, Pa., men's national swimming chairman of the AAU. Other officials included William Leonard of Schenectady, representing the Adirondack division of the AAU; Harry Hainsworth, New York, assistant to the president of the AAU and Robert Alexander of New York.

Fred Dippel, athletic director of Williams Lake, was clerk of the course. Walter Williams served as the announcer.

The summaries:

1. Eugene Adler, Brooklyn Central Y, 1 hr. 39 min. 46 secs.

Three Collectors

by another tag that the garbage will no longer be collected.

Ernest A. Steuding, public works superintendent, told members of the board and others at the meeting what he, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and Harry Edinger and Dr. G. F. Hoppenstedt, of the county health department, had learned in an inspection tour at Hartford, Conn., recently.

Mortality Cited

Statistics on the cooking of garbage, he said, shows that 70 pounds of pork results for every ton of garbage cooked and fed to pigs; that if garbage is not cooked the mortality rate is 40 per cent among pigs as against only 10 per cent when it is cooked.

The group inspected various methods of cooking the garbage, and one which Steuding said he considered efficient, made use of pipe lines in the trucks used for garbage collecting. These are hooked to steam lines when the trucks are brought in and it takes 27 minutes to bring the garbage to a boil. It is boiled for 30 minutes.

The local collectors indicated that they expect to arrive at a decision within the next week or two as to the method to be used here. They will make "on-the-spot" inspection of the different methods, one of them said.

On Basis of Figures

It was estimated on the basis of the figures obtained in Connecticut that the local collectors by using the garbage collected here to raise pigs could gross $16,455 a year each. Figures were not given on their operating expenses.

Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly, as acting mayor, conducted the meeting. Mayor Newkirk is on vacation. Corporation Counsel James G. Connelly, representing the city, and Attorney William A. Kaercher, appearing for the collectors attended the session. Others there were Commissioners Raymond L. Whitbeck, Joseph E. Honig, and Charles O. Davis; A. Foster Winfield, the board's assistant secretary, and the collectors who submitted bids.

Corn Growers Invited

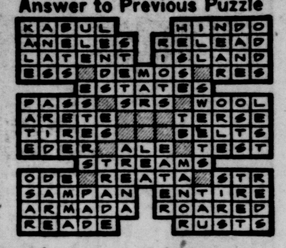

County sweet corn growers have been invited to a meeting Wednesday at 6:30 p. m., at the trial plots at the Davenport plot of the Van Etten farm on the Hurley Mountain road. They will be able to inspect 20 medium maturity sweet corn varieties grown together under similar conditions, and Dr. John Wiebe of Cornell University, vegetable crops specialist, will discuss the varieties, comparative yields and plant characteristics. Dr. J. Alfred Adams, entomologist, will also be present to make a report on insect activity so far this season and outline controls for the remainder of the crop season.

Small Plane Has Its Own Spree

Iron Mountain, Mich., Aug. 24 (AP)—A small, 8-year-old airplane is nesting in a treetop today after showing its frantic owner it could fly pretty well without him.

The little Aeronca two-seater kept this community rubber-necking skyward for nearly two hours yesterday as it circled lazily 4,000 feet overhead after leaving owner Walter Warner staring dumbfounded at its departing tail structure from the runway of Ford Airport.

All Warner had done was accidentally leave the throttle advanced a mite too far when he spun the propeller. He tried to climb in and stop the unscheduled flight but, the aircraft was a stubborn little cuss. It wanted to be alone.

Warner and sheriff's deputies raced down highways in a ground chase. The U. S. Air Force sent up a plane from Kinross Air Base near Sault Ste. Marie with orders to shoot down the carefree plane.

At this juncture, the little plane ran out of gas and circled down to land in a flock of elms 20 miles southeast of here, only slightly damaging itself in the process.

Now to get it down.

Hospital Group Had Bets' Service

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP) — The bizarre story of a horse race betting handbook operated in a mental institution by a physician, an inmate of several years, and the inmate's woman friend was told today by Chief Patrick C. Tuohy of the sheriff's police and Dr. Otto Bettag, state welfare director.

Dr. Bettag said the suicide of a nurse in the Chicago State Hospital Aug. 7 after she had lost heavily on bets placed with the bookie gave authorities their first tangible lead, although he said betting operations were believed to have extended over several years.

Tuohy said Mrs. Dorothy Hughes, 31, told of picking up bets of $30 a day when she called daily on Martin Wanzig, 42, who was last committed to the hospital in September, 1952. Tuohy quoted her that she telephoned the bets to an outside bookie and carried winnings back to Wanzig.

When arrested, she had $65 in her possession.

Started by Physician

Authorities said Mrs. Hughes told them the betting operations were started by a staff physician, who later enlisted Wanzig because, he said, "the operation is too big for me to handle alone." Mrs. Hughes said she drew a commission on the bets she relayed.

Dr. Bettag announced the physician and three other hospital employes have been dismissed. He declined to identify them.

The investigation began after Mrs. Fredonia Jones, 47, was found hanged in her room in the hospital nurses home. State investigators said she mailed a letter earlier that day to her husband, a laundry operator, indicating she was taking her own life because she had lost several thousand dollars betting.

Took Daily Bets

Officials said Wanzig, using his privileges as orderly, was able to contact patients and employes to take daily bets. Mrs. Jones' husband, Isaac, told them his wife telephoned her bets to the hospital when she was home on vacation.

Tuohy said no charge has been filed against Mrs. Hughes, who he said agreed to cooperate in the investigation. He said he did not know whether authorities could proceed against Wanzig, who he said had been committed periodically for suicidal tendencies over a period of 10 years.

Woman Dies in Plunge

New York, Aug. 24 (AP)—A 49-year-old woman fell or leaped seven floors to her death early today from her room in Lenox Hill Hospital. Police identified her as Mrs. Mildred Van Etten of RD 2, Warwick, and notified her husband, Wallace. The woman had been a patient at the hospital since Aug. 14.

Why We Say--

The ferris wheel was invented to compete with France. The giant wheel of entertainment was invented and named after George W. G. Ferris who made the first one for the Chicago Exposition of 1893 as something to rival the Eiffel Tower featured at the Paris Exposition of 1889.

3 Charges Face Fischer; Case Put Off Until Tuesday

Charles E. Fischer, 32, of 22 Mary's avenue, was arrested by Officer Peter Camp on East Strand near Hasbrouck avenue at 3:47 a. m., Sunday on charges of driving while intoxicated, operating a car while his license was suspended, and with switched plates.

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today put the case over until tomorrow to allow Fischer time to obtain counsel. He is under $500 bail on the charge of driving while intoxicated and was paroled on the other two charges.

Soviets Send Up 424 Army Jets

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Soviet Air Force hurled 424 military jet planes—more than twice as many as last year—over Moscow's Tuschina Airport yesterday for the annual display of Russia's air might.

Western observers said they noted no new types of aircraft.

Accompanied by top Soviet leaders, Premier Georgi Malenkov watched the annual air show for 75 minutes from the airport balcopy.

Also on hand were western diplomats, including U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, foreign military, air and naval attaches, and 200,000 Russians.

The show had been postponed twice because of bad weather. It finally was held in brilliant sunshine.

Rubanov Commands

The display this year was commanded by Lt. S. U. Rubanov. Last year, when 182 jets flew past, Stalin's son, Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, was the commander.

To open the show, Yak12 planes roared overhead bearing portraits of Lenin and Stalin and the flags of the 16 Soviet republics. Then 74 Yak18 fighters flew past forming the words "Glory to the U.S.S.R." Last year's aerial display read "Glory to Stalin."

Mass parachute jumps climaxed the program with a colorful display of red, blue, purple, yellow and white umbrellaed troops floating down.

Reds Charge U. S. Used Lethal Gas

Tokyo, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Communist Peiping radio said today that four North Korean soldiers released by the UN command have "died of gas poisoning by the American side."

The Red China radio noted that the allies have denied using toxic gas, but said "the death of the four returnees has given a lie to the American statement."

Col. L. C. Friedersdorff, spokesman for the UN side of the POW repatriation committee, earlier had categorically denied Red charges of "brutality," including the accusation of using toxic gas.

"Our side," the colonel told the Communist members of the committee on Aug. 19 "has used only the minimum forces required to maintain order and prevent riots ....only because the prisoners of war failed to conduct themselves as disciplined soldiers has the use of force and non-toxic irritants (tear gas and vomiting gas) been necessary."

The Peiping broadcast, heard in Tokyo, said "altogether 21 of these poisoned POWs have been handed over, four of whom have died since."

Soviets Send Up 424 Army Jets

Moscow, Aug. 24 (AP)—The Soviet Air Force hurled 424 military jet planes—more than twice as many as last year—over Moscow's Tuschina Airport yesterday for the annual display of Russia's air might.

Western observers said they noted no new types of aircraft.

Accompanied by top Soviet leaders, Premier Georgi Malenkov watched the annual air show for 75 minutes from the airport balcony.

Also on hand were western diplomats, including U. S. Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen, foreign military, air and naval attaches, and 200,000 Russians.

The show had been postponed twice because of bad weather. It finally was held in brilliant sunshine.

Rubanov Commands

The display this year was commanded by Lt. S. U. Rubanov. Last year, when 182 jets flew past, Stalin's son, Lt. Gen. Vassily Stalin, was the commander.

To open the show, Yak12 planes roared overhead bearing portraits of Lenin and Stalin and the flags of the 16 Soviet republics. Then 74 Yak18 fighters flew past forming the words "Glory to the U.S.S.R." Last year's aerial display read "Glory to Stalin."

Mass parachute jumps climaxed the program with a colorful display of red, blue, purple, yellow and white umbrellaed troops floating down.

the First Step!

As baby takes his first step, parents watch, breathless with suspense. "First steps" are SO important, all through life. The first step toward financial independence, for instance. This generally means opening a savings account and setting up a regular program of deposits every pay-day. Keeping everlastingly at it, is equally important, of course. But, first you must START. Why not take that "first step" TODAY?
